

Capitol Extensively Damaged in Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — An early-morning bomb blast ripped up an interior section of the U.S. Capitol's Senate wing today just 30 minutes after a caller warned of the explosion and said it was to retaliate for the U.S.-supported invasion of Laos.

The blast caused extensive damage but no injuries.

Capitol police said the bomb went off at 1:32 a.m. EST, following a call to the Capitol switchboard.

"Evacuate the building," a male voice said. "You may have received other calls like this one, but this one is real. Evacuate the building immediately. This is the real thing. This is in retaliation for the Laos decision. A bomb will go off in 30 minutes."

The Senate chamber itself was not damaged by the blast. The Senate convened as scheduled in midmorning, although visitors were not permitted in the Senate wing of the Capitol.

Political Bombing
"This is apparently a political bombing," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, President Nixon issued a statement through press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler calling the bombing "a shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans." But Nixon said the Capitol should remain open to all the people.

The Senate chamber itself was not damaged by the blast. The Senate convened as scheduled in midmorning, although visitors were not permitted in the Senate wing of the Capitol.

The blast pulverized a men's room and damaged other rooms, but did not touch the Senate chamber itself.

Perhaps coincidentally, it came 17 years to the day after Puerto Rican nationalists shot and wounded five congressmen from the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives. It also caused the most extensive damage to the building since the British set it afire in 1814.

Scott said the effect of the bombing will be unfortunate, both in this country and internationally.

"It's likely to be exaggerated," he said.

He said even if the person who placed the bomb is arrested, the Senate's front door perhaps and mirrors and windows were shattered but the barber chairs were not mangled or moved.

Bricks, doors, lighting and other fixtures were piled high in a corridor when newsmen were allowed a brief inspection about six hours after the blast.

The men's room—open to the public but generally only known about by people working in the area—was a gray hulk filled with tiny pieces of plumbing fixtures and gray plaster rubble. It was almost impossible to tell it had been a rest room.

A red brick wall on one side of the men's room was badly cracked and bulging out into the corridor. Plaster molding on the corridor wall was blown away and littered the floor along with glass from broken windows.

Gold lace curtains were pushed out against and sometimes through broken windows all the way down to the ornately painted committee and reception rooms on the north end of the Senate chamber. The front door, another 50 feet away, was broken.

The Senate barber shop, surrounding rooms, and blew across a small hallway from the out windows all the way out to men's room, was badly littered.

Officials Incensed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and members of the Senate expressed shock today over an explosion that caused extensive damage to the Senate wing of the Capitol building.

"A shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans," was Nixon's description in a statement telephoned from aboard Air Force One as the President flew to Des Moines, Iowa.

"The President feels that this act of violence is totally deplorable and will be condemned by all Americans," said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. "The President feels that the Capitol is a building that belongs to all Americans and symbolizes a form of government that for 192 years has provided a means for peaceful change," Ziegler said.

Earlier, when he learned of the explosion, Nixon called FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover from the White House for an assessment of the damage.

On board the presidential plane, Nixon called Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield as senators expressed their amazement and outrage over the explosion.

"Anyone who would plant a bomb like that any place, let alone the nation's Capitol, has to be a revolutionary or completely mad," Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., had a similar opinion. "I don't know what group it is, of course," Dominick said.

"But any group that tries to destroy something with the history of this nation behind it is obviously out of their mind—and very, very dangerous."

Other comments: Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., "It might represent merely the act of a few individuals, but it is quite serious from any viewpoint. And it is to be deeply regretted that the site of our representative government would have to be guarded, as would be necessary for a time, anyway."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination: "I deeply regret it, of course. I can only say it's a tragic, barbaric thing for anyone to do."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt.: "It's not totally unexpected, as I think the police have been keeping close watch, but weekends are not good. I have to say I'm not surprised."

President Pushing Proposals

Nixon Takes Revenue Plan to Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Nixon, seeking support for his controversial 1971 legislative goals from the legislature of rural-oriented Iowa, said today his ideas would "lead America to a new birth of greatness."

In an address prepared for a joint session of Iowa's legislature, Nixon argued strongly for federal revenue sharing and reorganization of government, including the Agriculture Department.

"I want those decisions that affect rural America made by people who know rural America, and the people who know a place best live there," he said. "To put it bluntly I believe that legislators in Iowa know better than bureaucrats in Washington, D.C. what is best for Iowa." Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and four Cabinet members, Nixon flew to Iowa for the first in a series of regional forays to promote administration legislation.

Nixon took the occasion to announce that he is adding $100 million to the $1 billion he originally proposed in special revenue sharing for rural community development. He said the $1.1 billion total for the coming fiscal year represents "24 per cent more for rural development programs than is being made available to the states under existing categorical grant programs."

In all, the chief executive seeks $16 billion in various types of revenue sharing, which he said would eliminate "the cumbersome restrictions that now follow federal funds."

"If the lessons of the past decades mean anything," he said, "they mean that as power has been concentrated more and more in Washington, as decisions have been made by remote control, the special needs of our rural communities and of the great heartland of America more and more have either been neglected or even gone unrecognized."

Reducing Cabinet
The chief executive also argued at length for cutting the present 12 Cabinet departments to eight and, in the process, abolishing the Agriculture Department and reassigning its functions.

Contending that the American farmer has changed while the federal government has not, Nixon said:

"The farmer is a man of many talents now—a businessman, a technician, a scientist—often a man who makes his living in more lines of work than farming alone."

"The rural community is becoming increasingly diversified in its economic base and its land use and its population patterns. While all this has gone on, we have sat in Washington with the same Department of Agriculture we have had since 1862."

The key to his effort to overcome farm bloc resistance to abolishing the department was this:

"Under the present setup, only one Cabinet department represents the farmer. Under my proposed reorganization four Cabinet secretaries—half the Cabinet—will be speaking up for the farmer when his diverse interests are at stake."

"I submit that this is not less representation, but more—and more effective representation, because the rural interest will be represented wherever decisions are being made that affect that interest."

The President said, "these proposals I have made are not Republican proposals or Democratic proposals. I have offered them in a bipartisan spirit and I seek bipartisan support."

Nixon today sent Congress a first annual report on government services to rural America and said it showed "important gains in the federal government's concern for the well being of rural areas."

"As examples, in fiscal 1970, we increased federal support for waste treatment grants in rural areas by 174 per cent over the previous year, and increased manpower development grants in such areas more than 50 per cent," he said.

"We have long recognized much of the housing in rural America is substandard—in fact about half of all substandard housing is in rural America. We have made real gains in this area."

"While our 1970 rural housing loan effort increased 56 per cent over 1969, in 1971 we will have increased these loans another 88 per cent, to an annual amount of over $1 1/2 billion," he added.

2 Million Off for Day

British Engineers Strike

LONDON (AP) — More than 2 million engineering workers paralyzed wide sections of British industry today with a 24-hour walkout to protest the Conservative government's anti-strike bill.

The strike, called by the militant Amalgamated Engineering Union, left Britain without national newspapers, halted car production and hit shipyard work.

An estimated 3 million more workers lost a day's pay because their factories were idled by the engineers' stoppage. And the Trades Union Congress—the national labor federation—warned that the stoppage would anger the public and boomerang on the unions.

The strike call was defied by thousands of engineering workers at the stricken Rolls-Royce factory in Derby which is already threatened with big layoffs because of the company's financial troubles. The men voted to stay on the job today.

The government's industrial relations bill is now in the final stages of approval by the House of Commons and should be law before the summer. The legislation bans closed shops, provides for cooling-off periods and secret strike ballots, and makes collective bargaining contracts legally enforceable in the courts.

Meanwhile, Britain's postal strike neared the end of its sixth week with prospects of a settlement dimmed over the weekend. The Post Office refused again to budge from its offer of a 9 per cent pay hike, and Tom Jackson, general secretary of the Postal Workers' Union warned the strike "could last for weeks."

The union is demanding a 13 per cent pay hike.

Volpe Testifies

'Too Late to Stop SST'

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing supersonic transport opponents of "at times almost hysterical sloganeering," Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said today America is too close to proving the plane with actual test flights to kill it now.

The best way to answer charges that SSTs will blot out the sun, cause skin cancer, shatter eardrums, melt icecaps and disturb animal life is the current program to build and test two SST prototypes, Volpe told Congress.

Two years and $1.1 billion have been invested in that program, Volpe said, and the test flights are scheduled for 1973.

"We have gone too far, invested too much and are too near our goal to let this all go down the drain with no tangible results," Volpe said.

Volpe's case before the House appropriations subcommittee for a full $290 million to keep the SST prototype program on schedule launched a full week of

Aid to Greek Colonels Seen With Misgivings

State Department Finally Admits Junta Hasn't Sought Parliamentary Government

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In subduing congressional protests over resumption of military aid to Greece, the state department painted a totally misleading picture of approval by Greek minds as to whether you are playing with us." But when the state department in later testimony claimed backing from anti-junta leaders for the aid resumption, Fulbright and other U.S. senators had to hold their fire. In short, they were sandbagged.

Admit Disappointment

Since then, the folly of the Nixon administration's decision has been coming home to roost. In a little noticed remark on "Face the Nation" Feb. 14, Davies' boss, Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, employing typical diplomatic understatement, said "Candidly, we have been disappointed in the fact that there hasn't been more progress toward the establishment of parliamentary government" in Greece.

That was the first public signal that some Nixon administration officials are having second thoughts about the aid resumption, which dissipated the major U.S. lever for democratic reforms in Greece. Simultaneously, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will soon take up a report on Greece expected to be highly critical of the junta's refusal to schedule elections, free all political prisoners, and end dictatorial rule. That report, drafted by two committee investigators who went to Athens, will presumably tell the truth about the anger of anti-junta political leaders over being used as a foil to justify arms aid.

Convinced that the resumption of aid not only solidified the junta and undercut their own efforts to restore parliamentary government, these legitimate opposition politicians are mortified at being used by the state department to achieve this triumph for the colonels.

Year-Around School Idea May Get Study

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The long summer halt in the operations of the public school system inherited from the 19th century founders may come under critical review in official quarters. The state Department of Public Instruction is providing quiet but significant hints — in view of the resistance to change repeatedly demonstrated in recent years — that it is not persuaded entirely of the merits of the traditional elementary and high school instruction term of nine to nine and one-half months, with a two and one-half month or three-month recess during the summer period.

Robert Van Raalte, a ranking officer on the staff of State Superintendent William C. Kahl, says that the justification for two many traditional patterns in Wisconsin education is tradition. "This is true about our present organization of the school year," he said, noting that the Davies rough treatment in a year-around school concept is committee hearing. After gaining considerable attention Davies testified the junta was and study in the rest of the really reforming, Fulbright Congress on the basis that the junta was vigorously moving toward parliamentary government.

Even before the arms embargo was lifted, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, gave year-around school concept is committee hearing. After gaining considerable attention Davies testified the junta was and study in the rest of the really reforming, Fulbright Congress on the basis that the junta was vigorously moving toward parliamentary government.

Extended Layoff

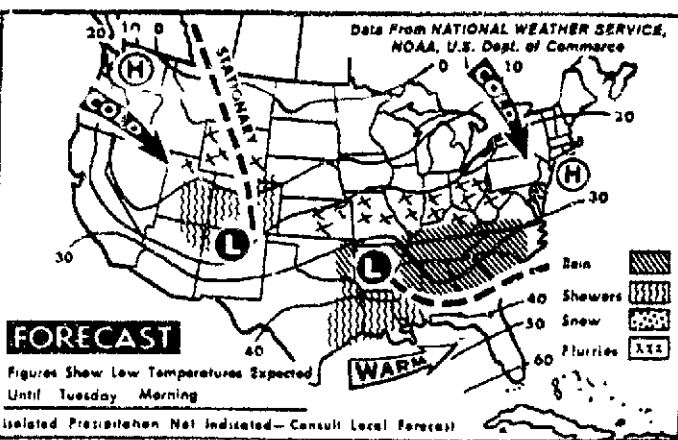

"There is little logic for the extended layoff of the schools' conditions and requirements, but when both staff and material failed to arouse a response resources are not being used," he added.

The department bulletin in which the officer wrote explained that a part of its budget request to the legislature is a "modest sum" for the employment of a specialist who would sponsor such an innovative approach and try to persuade a few selected school districts to experiment with pilot programs of year-around school operations.

"These programs will be carefully evaluated and their results made available to the schools of the state so that they may wisely choose to alter their present school year practices if they so desire," he explained.

Ranking officers of the state department, which is the constitutional supervisory agency for the entire Wisconsin public school system that enrolls about a million pupils, have favored extension of the schools' instruction calendar for some years, but have not pushed it aggressively. Angus Rothwell, immediate predecessor of Supt. Kahl, made such overtures to the legislature repeatedly, pointing to changing social conditions and requirements, but when both staff and material failed to arouse a response

A: She won't have to wait until next season — if Broadway producer Joe Kipness has his way. He tells me he'd like Rita to step into Lauren's shoes when Bacall hits the road with the smash hit, "Applause." Then on to London for a solid year and to Las Vegas for six months.

Gunsmoke in Two Parts, First Tonight

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 (Channels 2-7) — Gunsmoke has its second two-part of the season, and like its predecessor and Topsy, it "just grew" from an hour-long script. It's got wonderful Jeanette Nolan as a hard-nosed old gal who lives by selling bottles and who travels with a mule named Worthless. She finds Dack co Rambo, as one of a bandit gang, badly wounded and in possession of all the money from the freight robbery. She removes the bullets, then heads for Dodge to get him some painkiller. (PART I)

6:30-7 (Channel 5) — Phyllis Diller gets a few laughs with the usual corny material on The Red Skelton Show. In a Deadeye sketch, she's killer Diller, a baddie dressed in black except for one white boot.

7-8 (Channel 5) — Richard Crenna plays a lion in a production number on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In. It's an original Billy Barnes song, pointing up the foibles of humans and it's got Ruth Buzzi as a yellow squirrel, Johnny Brown as a purple kangaroo, Lily Tomlin as a leopard, Barbara Sharma as a Koala Bear in sunglasses, Alan Sues as a big blue bunny, Dennis Allen as an orange monkey and Ann Elder as a pink poodle.

7:30-8 (Channels 2-7) — Here's Lucy becomes the first show of the season to go on repeats, but who can complain when the first one offers Richard Burton, Elizabeth Taylor and That Diamond Ring? It was an hilarious show, with Elizabeth surprising some with her flair for broad comedy.

8-8:30 (Channels 2-7) — Howard's (Jack Dodson) efforts to be a swinger will amuse fans of Mayberry R. F. D. He takes a small bit of encouragement from a pretty girl as a large lure, and moves into a swinging singles apartment.

8-10 (Channels 11-9) — "The Flim-Flam Man" on The Monday Night Movie is a better picture than it was given credit for being when it was released in 1967. First of all, there's a marvelous performance from George C. Scott in the title role, and a winning one from Michael Sarrazin, as Scott's apprentice.

8:30-9 (Channels 2-7) — The Doris Day Show is for men-watchers, with hands-on some charmers all over the place as Doris and Rose Marie go on a skiing weekend. But everything doesn't work out as it should: Rosie trips and sprains her ankle on the stairs (looking after a handsome man, of course) before she ever gets to the room. Ah, but all is not lost — isn't that handsome doctor coming to treat her John Gavin?

9-10 (Channels 2-7) — Tim Conway, Pat Carroll and Karen Wymann are guests on The Carol Burnett Show, with Tim and Carol in a very funny sketch. He's an architect about to entertain his boss (Harvey Korman) and the boss' wife (Pat). Just before they arrive, he accidentally gets a shot meant for his dog, and he begins acting very doggie with his guests.

Fire Damages Motor At Rockwell Plant

OSHKOSH — A flash fire during maintenance procedures in the heat treat plant at Rockwell Standard Company at 11:27 a.m., Saturday, resulted in considerable damage to an electric motor. Oshkosh firemen extinguished the blaze in 23 minutes. Rockwell Standard employees used most of the available fire extinguishers in assisting. Three fire houses answered the alarm with a total of five trucks.

Q: I've read that the very British Olivia Hussey's accent is a put-on. That she was born in good old Brooklyn. Was she? — Irene Talamo, Worcester, Mass.

A: The very British Juliet was born in Buenos Aires.

Q: My daughter's music teacher claims that Charlotte Harris (cello player in the Witte orchestra) has been blind from birth. That she learned to play through the Braille system. Is this true? — H.P.B., Phoenix, Ariz.

A: "I don't really know what makes people think Charlotte Harris is blind," Welk informs us. "But she definitely is not. In fact, she often performs with our vocal group in production numbers which necessitate dancing and a great deal of movement."

Q: Now that Magda Gabor is the new Mrs. George Sanders, I hear that she and her sister Zsa Zsa (the old Mrs. George Sanders) are not on speaking terms. Is that right? — Joel Porshersky, Philadelphia.

A: Wrong. The sisters are speaking — but the bride and groom are not! Since Sanders asked the court to annul the marriage a month and a day after the ceremony. Which must make Zsa Zsa as unhappy as the guest bride. Because she admits she's the one who played matchmaker in the mismatch.

Q: Isn't the theme song on the "Lassie" — Frank B. Leiber, Waterbury, Conn.

A: Answers the producer: "Our theme song does indeed have the pastoral quality and is somewhat reminiscent of 'An Irish Lullaby' in terms of melodic structure, but therein the similarity ends. It happens to be an original melody written and composed by Les Baxter."

Gordon A. Bubolz, president, said at the firm's quarterly board of directors' meeting that the increase came despite adversity in the insurance industry.

Assets increased 11 per cent and surplus rose $555,614.

Homelead Mutual, the farm insurer of the group, hiked premium volume 17.6 per cent from $1,716,045 to $2,017,836. The firm showed an underwriting profit of $102,725, its fourth year of underwriting gain.

Homeco Life Insurance Co. reported $16,800,344 of insurance in force since its inception in 1967.

George Scott's Name Kept in Competition For Academy Award

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor George C. Scott's request that he be withdrawn as an Oscar nominee has been denied by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Scott was nominated for his lead role in "Patton" but asked to be removed from consideration because "I simply do not wish to be involved."

Academy President Daniel Taradash said Friday that "it would demean the other nominees if all nominees are not considered."

Paper Cup Tower Falls
If Moved Carelessly

BY CAPPY DICK

A good game to play at a party involves the construction of a tower of paper cups. The players take turns

The player who starts the game carries one paper cup, bottom up, across the room and hands it to the second player.

The second player places a second cup on top of the first. The two cups must be bottom-to-bottom as in figure 1. The second player must carry the two cups across the room and hand them to the third player.

This player must add a third cup to the growing tower, placing the cups top-to-top as in figure 2. He carries the cups across the room and hands the tower to the fourth player. The fourth player adds a cup and carries the tower across the room to the fifth player, and so on. The game becomes more and more exciting as the height of the tower increases.

When the tower finally collapses and the responsible player has paid his penalty, the players may use the same paper cups to start a new tower.

"HOW MUCH OF THIS DO I HAVTA EAT IF I KNOW WHAT'S GOOD FOR ME?"

Food Shopping Guide Helps Save Money

BY ARTHUR ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If the rising cost of living is getting you down, ask yourself if you are doing everything possible to save money on food. Few people are.

What it really boils down to for most people is not so much the amount of their income but grimmer determination than how they spend it. It is estimated that food shoppers alone pay from 15 to 30 per cent more than they need to because of suggestions and old reminders from an expert source, your next step should be to get a copy of a free, 26-page booklet, "Your Money's Worth in Food." It is free on request to the Information Office, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

New Offering

Unlike most USDA publications, this one is not merely a revision or reprinting of earlier material. It is a brand new offering destined for the best seller list at the Government Printing Office where it will cost 25 cents.

Here are some of the more valuable features of the booklet: —A table of figures showing the comparative cost per serving of various meat cuts for prices per pound ranging from 40 cents to $1.80.

—A table showing at what price chicken parts become good buys when the price of ready-to-cook whole fryers is between 27 and 55 cents a pound.

—Comparative costs of meat and meat substitutes with the same amount of protein per serving. (They show that when hamburger costs 11 cents per two-ounce serving in Washington, D.C., stores, comparable amounts of protein cost 9 cents for eggs, 7 cents for pork and beans, 3 cents for dry beans, 6 cents for peanut butter, 10 cents for processed American cheese and 7 cents for cottage cheese.)

—A table showing the number of average servings in a pound of various fruits and vegetables in fresh, canned, frozen and dried form.

—A list of fruits and vegetables showing which cost 6 cents or less per serving and which cost 12 cents or more for the same amount, based on prices in Washington last June.

—Two page-size tables one for fruits and one for vegetables, showing the cost of a half-cup serving (or equivalent) when retail prices range from 8 to 60 cents per pound.

—A three-page table making it easy to find the cost per pound or pint for any package from one to 48 ounces at package prices ranging from 10 cents to $1.

In addition, the booklet describes sample food budgets for various income levels and various family sizes and some recommended menus containing a healthy balance of important nutrients.

Among the shopping tips that never can be stressed enough are ones emphasizing the importance of watching the food ads, shopping for specials, comparing prices of store brands and secondary grades such as "B" and "C" and buying the most economical quantities depending on prices per pound or pint.

Also listed are 24 other USDA publications on similar topics available without charge from the same source.

3 City Youths Fined For Possessing Beer At East High School

Three Appleton teen-agers, caught with beer inside Appleton High School-East Feb. 19, were fined Friday after two of them, 17, were waived into adult court.

Michael R. Fuller, 17, 1826 E. Lindbergh St., John Landusky, 18, 120% E. Spring St., and Mark Haase, 17, 1911 N. Morrison St., each pleaded guilty to charges of possessing beer off licensed premises.

Fuller, who additionally was charged with disorderly conduct stemming from the same incident, and Haase were waived from Juvenile Court by Judge Raymond P. Dohr. Fuller, detectives said, made abusive remarks to a teacher at the high school when questioned about the beer. He pleaded guilty on the count.

Fuller was fined $150 and costs by County Judge Nick F. Schaefer. The two others were fined $50 and costs. All three had their driver's licenses restricted by Schaefer for 60 days.

Age Limit Lowered For Sentencing to Waupun State Prison

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin judges are being asked to sentence convicts as young as 25 to the State Prison at Waupun because of crowding at the State Reformatory at Green Bay.

The cutoff age has been 30, but a state Corrections Division policy directive effective today requests the change.

The reformatory, which was built for 623 inmates, now has about 780, while the prison, built for 876, has more than 1,000.

While both are overcrowded, the situation is more severe at the reformatory, said Sanger Powers, director of the Corrections Division.

There're So Many Things to Do at Nursery School

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Each day during the school year, three, four and five-year-olds arrive at the First Congregational, United Church of Christ, to spend two hours with their peers. These youngsters are enrolled in either the morning or the afternoon session of the Five-

Day Nursery which is headed by two fully-qualified teachers, Mrs. Robert Leekley and Mrs. John Carlson.

Held in two of the educational wing's bright, cheerful rooms — one of which is dubbed the quiet room and the other the noisy room — the nursery school is run on the premise that a child's introduction to school should be a happy one. Both Mrs. Leekley and Mrs. Carlson believe children should be children and not small adults of three, four or five years.

They stress creative and imaginative play, believing that a youngster can't grow up to be a creative adult if he is limited to rigid, structured play.

The first part of each session, therefore, is spent in this special creative play. In the "noisy" room, the children swish and pour water in a water table, string four-wheeled blocks into a freight train or play store in a block building they constructed themselves.

Those little ones who would rather look at books, put puzzles together, dress up in old clothes or paint at an easel wander into the "quiet" room to indulge in just such activities.

Later in the session everyone joins either Mrs. Carlson or Mrs. Leekley to talk about the big snow, to hear a story or to listen to a special record. After a snack and, weather permitting, they move outdoors to play in the wooded ravine, on a black topped area with large outdoor toys or perhaps, on a giant snow bank where they can climb, tumble and tunnel. The combination of the outdoor and noisy room activities help the children to develop large motor control, one of the objectives of the nursery school.

Of course, the little ones begin to understand what sharing is all about, what it means to make friends and why certain behavior is either acceptable or not acceptable.

As most classes of this kind do, they take trips to such places as orchards, farms and grocery stores. They plant bulbs and seeds and watch tiny plants begin to push through the earth, finally turning into lovely yellow daffodils or bean sprouts.

Because they do spend five days a week in their classroom, the children experience continuity and enjoy knowing what will happen next. Since the classes are limited to an enrollment of 18, the teachers have an opportunity to really get to know their small charges and have time to spend with each of them individually.

Certainly, all of these things add to an unforgettable experience for each of the youngsters.

The Fort Was Built and then it was time to crawl in and out of it. Busy at this active play are Jason Crane, David Baker, John Hah and Mary Lou Kramlich. At right, David Baker works by himself to build a special building.

Below, The Children enjoy the challenge of climbing and crawling around on a huge snow bank in front of the church.

Andy Cheng, above, is deeply engrossed in the intricacies of a puzzle during one of the recent sessions at school. Below, it was splashing water around in the water table that brought a big grin to Dedrik Bornslaeger's face.

After Hooking together a number of four-wheeled block sections, Ian Atalla decides it's time to be the engineer and drive the train. Below, on the very top of the mountain of snow, Julie Stratton, Andy Cheng and David Baker make tunnels and deep holes to sit in, crawl through and romp over.

Appleton Woman's Work on Display At Museum of Contemporary Crafts

NEW YORK — Marge A. Engelman, 403 E. Franklin St., Appleton, is currently exhibiting at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts show, "Furs and Feathers." Her work is a fur sculpture called "Some Body to Love" and is constructed of muskrat, mink, fox, seal, Persian and beaver furs.

The recent explosion of artistic exploration of the visual tactile and evocative properties of "Furs and Feathers" can be seen at the museum through March 24. The exhibition includes sculpture objects, personal adornments, decorative home accessories, conceptual works of art, ecological references, environmental and participatory works and historical examples.

Ecology-Conservation

Whether or not one sees the current "Furs and Feathers" phenomenon as an attempt to get back to nature or as related to the kind of tribalism evidenced by emerging communal life styles, one cannot ignore its relationship to the problems of ecology and conservation.

The exhibition attempts to point out, in addition to the beauty and sensuousness of objects made of furs and feathers, the necessity of exercising caution in their use so that the animal world, the beauty of the natural environment, will not be destroyed.

In cooperation with the World Wildlife Fund, a conservation organization headquartered in Washington, D. C., information artist, Newton Harrison, has created especially for the exhibition a "Proposal for an Ecological Nerve Center."

It is a continually evolving participatory work which is a dramatic graphic presentation of the extent to which species around the world are endangered, have recently become extinct, or can regenerate themselves when conservation is enforced.

None of the works in the exhibition utilize the furs or feathers of endangered species, and their abundance and variety indicates that there is no valid reason to decimate any animal population. Many artists, in effect "recycle" these materials by working with found feathers or furs from old fur coats. Technology has provided the artist and designer with a further challenge to his ingenuity by creating synthetic furs.

So that visitors to the Museum can actually experience the tactile of "Furs and Feathers," a number of environmental and participatory works have been included. Upon entering the building, one is invited to try the "Handwarmer," a good construction lined with fur. The Museum elevator has been transformed into a fur and feather environment.

For the children of all ages, there are an eminently huggable 8-foot high teddy bear-like object called "Some Body to Love," made of a patchwork of various furs, and a "Bed of Tinkles," a feather environment for a willing child, with several tickling feathers suspended on springs. Children's poems on the subject are included in the unit, and visitors are invited to add their own.

From Dada to Dress

"Furs and Feathers" incorporates a wide variety of kinds of objects and moods of expression. They range from the ancient Peruvian and North American Indian featherwork in ritual objects to the contemporary ceramic pieces incorporating fur or feathers; from the famous fur-lined teacup borrowed from:

the Museum of Modern Art to the photographic documentation of the varying rearrangements of a group of sheep in a pasture.

Several articles of personal adornment are shown, including neckpieces, a cape and a feather dress. A fur bicycle, a fur ladder, and a 17-foot high clear vinyl unit containing air-blown feathers circulating at timed intervals are also of interest. Woven hangings, wall pieces, and a variety of highly personal sculptures in a more serious mood provide the exhibition with additional aesthetic substance.

Condition Dry Hair With Treatment

Dry hair is usually the result of nature's failure to produce sufficient sebaceous oil. Artificial heat and exposure to the weather are other causes. Condition the hair and scalp with a hot oil treatment before shampooing. Apply hot olive oil to the scalp and then wrap the head in a hot towel. Follow with a shampoo especially formulated for dry hair. Between shampoos, keep the scalp toned with applications of witch hazel pads.

Your Problems

Perhaps the Reason Is Just Sociological

BY ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers I read with interest the letter from "Joy Girl" proclaiming it a fact that blonds have more fun. Her letter was a rebuttal to another letter which said blonds do not have more fun—they just enjoy perpetuating the myth.

I seriously doubt that there is a biological reason why blonds have more fun, but there might be a sociological reason. I quote from the Encyclopedia Britannica (1969) under Prostitution:

"The Roman system of regulation was especially severe. Prostitutes were placed under stringent control and required to register with the police. They had to wear distinctive dress and dye their hair gold or wear yellow wigs. They were also subjected to various civil disabilities."

Understandably the gals with the golden tresses received many more propositions in those days — and for very good reason.

Do you suppose the blonds of today might be subconsciously labeling themselves in some way — as their ancient sisters did? — H.J.

Dear H.J.: Why don't you ask some blonds? But don't be surprised if you end up with a fat lip, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: I had surgery seven weeks ago and am having a difficult time recovering because I am overweight. My doctor has put me on an 800-calorie diet — which is like nothing.

The social season is in full flower in our town and I've been invited to several dinner parties these past two weeks. Although I know I shouldn't eat rich food, I eat everything served because I hate to hurt the hostess' feelings. My diet is falling on its face. This poses a serious problem because I was widowed last year and went into deep depression. My psychiatrist insists that I accept invitations and be with people.

So now I must decide which is more important — to accept dinner invitations and be mentally healthy — or to refuse dinner invitations and stick to my diet. I'd like your advice — Hobson's Choice.

Dear Mrs. Hobson: Both are equally important. You need not sacrifice one for the other, however. Accept the invitations — but tell the hostess you will arrive after dinner. Eat you lettuce and cottage cheese at home, then join your friends for the sociability. There are no calories in talk.

Dear Ann Landers: We have four children under 12 years of age. My husband's brother moved in with us after a messy divorce. It was supposed to be "for a couple of weeks." That was in 1967 and Lardo is still here. He's a retired Army man and has told our children the dirty jokes from the last three wars.

Lardo works when he feels like it and spends the money on goldiggers. He has never bought so much as a pork chop for the table. I do his laundry and send his dry cleaning out with my husband's. When Lardo gets stiff he calls long distance all over the country and our phone bills are wild. I haven't had a new coat in five years. No money.

Last night I got so mad I told my husband if he didn't ask Lardo to move I was seeing a lawyer about a separation. He said, "I am my brother's keeper." Who is right? — Mollie

Dear Mollie: Your brother-in-law needs a keeper all right, but I fail to see why you and your husband should continue to be chumps.

You have every right to insist that the freeloader move. Stick with your demands.

How it Works

The new jet injector, will be used to administer the vaccine. The two most commonly asked questions about the jet injector are, "How does it work and does it hurt?"

The jet injector is an extremely simple device. It works on the same principle as a common water pistol or "squirty gun." Inside the gun's chamber is a large spring.

Prior to each injection, this spring is cocked by means of hydraulic oil, forced through two hoses by a pump driven by an electric motor. When the trigger is pulled, the spring is released driving the vaccine out of a single tiny hole much as water is forced out of a water pistol. There is no needle in the gun.

Since needles are not used, most of the children, when asked about pain, remark that it does not hurt or that it causes a tickling sensation.

The jet injection is fast. One child each second is immunized. It is quiet and safe.

Who Should Be Immunized?

All children ages one through 12-years-of-age should have the Rubella immunization. This age group is primarily responsible for spreading the disease. Therefore, by vaccinating them, the disease is kept from the pregnant mother.

Rubella causes serious defects in unborn children during the first three months of the mother's pregnancy. The defects range from loss of hearing and sight to heart defects to mental retardation.

Who should not have Rubella immunizations at these clinics?

The range is broad. It includes children who are allergic to chicken or duck eggs or feathers, rabbits or rabbit fur or to neomycin; children with a serious allergic problem should have permission of their doctor; children who have a temperature of 100 degrees or more on the day of a clinic; children who have received a live virus vaccine within the last month such as polio, smallpox, measles and mumps; children currently under medical treatment for leukemia, and other malignancies and whose resistance has been lowered by therapy with steroids, alkylating drugs, antimetabolites or radiation should consult their own doctor.

Following the great rubella epidemic of 1964, approximately 20,000 children were born with birth defects. These rubella-damaged children are now ready for school and their needs in rehabilitation, care and education are of tremendous scope and cost. For example, education and care alone for a rubella-damaged child costs at least $9,000 a year, according to authorities in the field.

Now an end to this terrible toll is in sight. A proven vaccine has been developed for German measles. However, since this vaccine is not recommended for pregnant women, the best means of protecting the unborn child is by reducing the likelihood of rubella infection.

The safest and most effective protection is eliminating the chance that the expectant mother will become infected by children.

Take Precautions

Already some six-million children in the United States and abroad have received the vaccine. So far, results have been excellent. The vaccine is safe and appears to provide long-term immunity. The next step is to break once and for all, the pattern of epidemic rubella.

To avoid another aftermath of birth defects and deaths in early 1971, all parents and guardians are asked to sign the consent forms which will come into their homes with their children.

Pre-schooler consent forms will be printed in the paper and will also be available at the clinic site.

According to the Appleton Visiting Nurses' Association officials, 6,209 children in Outagamie County were immunized in April of 1970.

That Fascinating Woman' to be Theme of Day of Recollection

Cinderella's Pumpkin turned into a coal loader. (AP Wirephoto)

One-Time Princess Takes to Mines

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A coal mine may strike you as one of the unlikely working locales for a Snowflake Princess.

But if Donna Marie Kozlosky makes the grade as a mining engineer, that's where she will be spending some of her time.

She is the first girl ever to enroll as a major in mining engineering at Pennsylvania State University.

"My whole family has been in coal mining, and all my life I've been hearing stories about the mines," says the newly married 18-year-old from Port Carbon, in the heart of the anthracite region. "So I guess it was more or less second nature to me that I chose mining engineering as a career."

She says the final incentive came from her guidance counselor at St. Clair Area High School, which she represented last year as its Snowflake Princess at the annual Pottsville Winter Carnival.

"He told me it would be a challenge, that women are scarce in mining engineering," she says. "That's what I really like about it—the challenge."

Joseph W. Hunt of Penn State's earth and mineral sciences department says, "The mining industry has many problems to be solved in health and safety, pollution and production, and there's no reason why a bright young girl can't be just as effective as a man."

Donna has been warned it isn't women's work, and one company has advised it "didn't have separate shower facilities, for after-work cleanup, and wasn't going to make them."

"I'm not looking for any special treatment," says Donna. "I intend to start in the mines and work my way up. I plan to do everything expected of a mining engineer and if it means starting out as a mining inspector and going down into the mines to check conditions that's what I'll do."

Her husband, Raymond, a heavy-duty mechanic, plans to follow Donna's footsteps to college. Maybe even to the mines.

If a defender plays the queen of the first lead of a high honor by declarer, how likely is he to have the jack?

Some defenders always play the queen from a holding of Q-J doubleton. Therefore, if the jack is played by one of these players, the queen must be somewhere else. However, sometimes these thoughts obscure the real issue.

Observe today's interesting game hand, which demonstrates this point.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

Against West's lead of the diamond king, the declarer mastering in opponent's psychology might well play as follows:

He ruffs the diamond continuation and plays the ace of spades, West dropping the queen. Declarer, knowing that West is a compulsive false-carder who always plays the queen from Q-J doubleton, follows with the king of spades, hoping to drop West's jack.

When this fails, declarer's contract fails, too, since he could not avoid losing two more spades and a heart.

When this hand came up in a recent rubber bridge match, Boris Koytchou, popular New York City bridge teacher, demonstrated the correct method of playing this trump suit combination. He ruffed the diamond continuation and played the ace of spades.

When West played the queen of spades, declarer thought briefly about the possibilities of the Q-J being doubleton. Only briefly, however.

Declarer recognized a sure safety play. He didn't care who had the jack. Boris led a low club to dummy's king and then played a spade from dummy. When East followed with a low card, declarer played his spade 10, not caring whether West won or not.

If West had won, then trumps would have divided three-two and there would be no further losers. If not, as in today's hand, declarer's 10 would win the trick and only one spade trick lost to East.

Declarer's play is known as a safety play. Declarer is willing to lose a trick, even if unnecessary, for safety against the unacceptable loss of two tricks in the suit.

Area Woman Makes Appeal For Coupons

MENASHA — Mrs. Betty Gunderson, 886 Marquette St., is making a last appeal for Betty Crocker Coupons for the Upper-Peninsula Chapter-Michigan Kidney Foundation.

According to the Menasha woman, "General Mills is discontinuing redeeming Betty Crocker coupons for life-saving devices because of accusations that the firm was trading on human misery."

"Misunderstandings of the program led to charges that the company was profiting from misfortune and playing on public sympathy," she said that "it was such misunderstandings that led to the decision to discontinue the projects."

No coupons will be redeemed for the projects after May 31. Approximately 500,000 coupons have been donated toward the 600,000 goal. Some 70,000 have already been sent to Michigan from the Fox River Valley.

Mrs. Gunderson will continue to collect Betty Crocker coupons until April 1. They can be mailed either to her or to Coupon Chairman, 1016 10th Avenue South, Escanaba, Mich. 49829.

Appleton Air Unfit to Breathe?

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

In case there was any doubt, your sinuses are probably better off in Arizona than in Appleton. At least that appears to be evident from the dingy gray smudge on a sheet of filter paper that the Health Department was preparing today to mail to the state air pollution control laboratory in Madison.

From early afternoon Saturday until the same time 24 hours later on Sunday, the sheet of paper "breathed" about 700 cubic feet of Appleton air.

What had started as a bright white surface was turned the color of the inside of a used vacuum cleaner bag.

Just how dirty the air is won't be known for some time. The test was the first in a series spaced over roughly two-week intervals over the next year.

and the state laboratory has to analyze the filters used in each test and weigh the impurities.

The filter paper, resembling a thin blotter, is held in the mouth of the sampling device. The machine itself sounds and vaguely looks like a portable vacuum cleaner. It runs at a measured speed and a meter tells the volume of air that is drawing through the filter in cubic feet per minute.

Portable Shelter

The machine used over the weekend drew in 67 cubic feet per minute at the start of the period and when it was shut off 24 hours later the volume had fallen to 66, according to Deputy Health Commissioner Peter LeMere.

The device is set up in a portable metal shelter. The roof of the police station was chosen as the test site.

That is where the tests will continue to be run. In addition, the equipment can be moved to other locations to give a city-wide cross-section of air quality according to LeMere.

The Health Department is running the tests in cooperation with the Air Pollution Control Section of the Department of Natural Resources' air pollution and solid waste bureau.

Appleton is among 16 Wisconsin cities outside Milwaukee County that are participating in an expanded statewide air sampling program, as part of the DNR's stepped-up air pollution control effort.

Besides last weekend's first test of particulate matter — flying matter ranging from dust to some elements of smoke — the city also will sample sulphur dioxide content of the air over Appleton, starting when equipment arrives from the DNR.

Sulphur dioxide is a waste generated by burning of petroleum fuels.

According to LeMere, the filters used in the particulate tests are mailed to Madison along with data concerning the time period of the test and the volume of air drawn through the filter for the period.

The state laboratory weighs the filters and calculates the amount of airborne particles in a given quantity of air.

The local laboratory will perform part of the test for sulphur dioxide and send the results to Madison for interpretation.

Douglas Evans, head of the DNR air pollution agency, said

Outagamie Hospital

Aid Sought to Fix Potential Hazards

Citing several recent disasters at similar institutions and the possible loss of accreditation, Eugene K. Speener, superintendent of the Outagamie County Hospital and Golden Age Home, this morning asked for $8,000 to correct potential fire hazards at the hospital.

The county board's finance committee, after hearing from Speener, voted unanimously to recommend that the board approve an $8,000 transfer from the salaries section of the Golden Age Home budget to the capital improvement section of the county hospital budget. The board will act on the proposal March 9.

The potential fire hazards, Speener explained, exist in the kitchen where there is no extinguishing system near stove vents and in corridors on three floors where the absence of fire doors and fireproof partitions could allow for a "chimney effect" in the event fire should start.

Speener later told The Post-Crescent that there recently was a small fire on the third floor of the hospital. Had the blaze not been discovered in time, he said, the lack of fire doors could have had an effect.

He said the deficiencies were pointed out to hospital officials by a section of the State Department of Health which determines eligibility for Medicaid and Medicare benefits and by the Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The Chicago agency, according to Speener, informed officials that the hospital might not be accredited after the October, 1971, inspection unless the deficiencies are remedied.

Although the lack of accreditation would not affect normal operations of the hospital, Speener said, it could mean that the hospital could not serve as "training grounds" for nurses, as is proposed in conjunction with the operation of the new vocational school being constructed nearby, and for psychiatric interns.

Speener said there has been increasing concern over the number of recent fires that resulted in many deaths at a number of old age and nursing institutions in the United States and Canada, and he predicted that federal fire standards codes will become "more stringent" in the near future.

"We should do what we can to assure that a disaster does not occur here," Speener told the finance committee.

He said about $6,000 would be needed to add 12 automatic-closing fire doors and fireproof partitions in the corridors and another $1,795 would cover the cost of installing a dry chemical extinguisher system near the ranges in the hospital kitchen.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton termed it "inconceivable" that there was no extinguishing system in the kitchen.

Speener said the cost of correcting the deficiencies could be held down somewhat by institution employees doing some of the work.

Little Chute Man Dies of Crash Injuries

KAUKAUNA — A 72-year-old Little Chute man died at Community Hospital Sunday of injuries suffered Feb. 11 when he was hit by a car in the city.

He was Arnold Van Deraa, 1107 N. Depot St., Little Chute. Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said that Van Deraa died of complications of injuries sustained in the accident.

Kaukauna police said Van Deraa was crossing Main Avenue at 9:05 p.m. Feb. 11 when he was struck by an automobile just north of First Street Alley. The driver of the car, according to police, was Vincent P. Hartzheim, 49, 802 Metoxen Ave. Hartzheim had been traveling south on Main.

Van Deraa sustained two broken legs and a fractured pelvis.

His death was the second this year due to Outagamie traffic accidents.

Three persons were dead on this date last year. Verkuilen Funeral Home in Little Chute is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Rescue Squad Continuation Supported by Labor Unions

The Appleton Federation of Labor Unions, AFL-CIO, has endorsed the position of the Appleton Fire Fighters Association Local 257, urging continuation of the city's fire department rescue squad.

Ron Scheid, fire fighters' delegate to the city-wide federation, spoke before the group last week and offered an eight-point policy proposal for resolving disagreement between the fire department and operators of private ambulances in the city.

Besides endorsing Scheid's proposal, the federation added two proposals of its own, urging certification of both rescue squad and private ambulance service personnel, and requiring the private services to publish the fees they charge.

Scheid proposed that the city go ahead with plans to buy a new rescue squad vehicle to replace an old one. The vehicle should serve in cases including major disaster, unavailability of a private ambulance, severe bleeding, breathing stoppage and poisoning, Scheid said.

In addition, Scheid said the public should be notified that the fire department is not providing a "transport service" for persons needing transportation for medical reasons, but under non-emergency circumstances or other cases outside the realm served by the rescue squad.

He also proposed several points aimed at coordinating city and private services' operations, to assure the private services of an opportunity to transport persons who should be served by the private ambulance but who call the fire department.

Only if a private ambulance is unavailable will the city squad provide transport service according to Scheid's proposal.

He also proposed that if it is considered necessary for the city to continue collecting a fee for transport service, the proceeds would go into a special fund to be used for buying lifesaving equipment for the rescue squad.

The city began several years ago charging the same fee as the private services, in an effort to discourage persons from calling the fire department when a private ambulance could do the job. Private operators have complained that the city is unfairly competing with them.

Scheid noted that ironically whenever the dispute has been publicized, the number of requests received at the fire department for ambulance service have increased.

While agreeing that it is probably reasonable in this case to determine that the city should not compete with private ambulance services," Scheid said the rescue squad should continue to operate.

He argued that the private services serve three counties and could conceivably leave Appleton residents without immediate service while handling calls outside the city. He added that in case of a major disaster, both private and city vehicles would be in high demand.

12 Candidates For Executive To Become 2

Twelve men, 10 of them already connected with government, today wound up campaigning in the primary race for Outagamie County executive.

The list of candidates will be slashed to two in Tuesday's primary election. The executive, who first in the county's history and only the second in Wisconsin, will take office after the general election in April. His annual salary will be $18,500.

Some of the candidates have spent thousands of dollars vying for votes. Some spent less than $100. One candidate spent nothing, explaining that if the people want him, they will vote for him.

The following is a rundown on the executive candidates, including a brief biographical sketch on each one:

Gilbert J. Anderson, 47, who is serving his second term as mayor of Kaukauna. The University of Wisconsin graduate also is in his second year as chairman of the Fox Valley Council of Governments.

Norman Austin, 51, Outagamie County Board supervisor from the Town of Oneida since 1961. He also has been town chairman for the last 10 years. Austin is employed by the Chicago and North Western Railroad.

George L. Buckley, 54, second-term mayor of Appleton. Buckley served as Illinois assistant attorney general from 1953-55. He was a Chicago alderman for four years and was on the Appleton City Council for two terms before being elected mayor.

Publication of 'The Paper' to Cease Sunday

OSHKOSH — The Paper for Central Wisconsin, which during the past six months has dropped from a six-day daily newspaper to a twice-a-week publication, will cease all publication next Sunday.

According to an announcement released this morning by Ted Leyhe, co-publisher, "The Paper for Central Wisconsin" will publish its last edition on Sunday, March 7.

The Paper was started as a morning daily newspaper on Oct. 9, 1967. Published by Miles Kimball Co., it changed to a twice-weekly free circulated paper devoted to advertising in August 1970. Leyhe was unavailable for comment this morning.

Neenah Company Wants to Lease Land for Structure

Arctic Distributors, Inc., of Neenah, is seeking to lease land on the Outagamie County Airport to build a hangar and office building.

In a letter to the Outagamie County Board's airport committee, Donald Hoymann, chief pilot for the firm, said they wanted to build a structure 60 feet by 60 feet "for our aircraft and passengers."

Arctic Distributors has the Arctic Cat snowmobile distributorship for Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. It now rents a T-hangar at the airport for its twin turbine aircraft.

It had requested space on the south side of the Maxair, Inc., ramp but airport zoning limits that area to commercial aviation use.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, Appleton, suggested that a mutually suitable location be found and a land rental price be determined.

Area School Fiscal Woes

Topic of Panel

Bruce Purdy, vice president of Appleton Wire Works Corp., will be the moderator of a panel discussion Wednesday night on the serious financial situation and other problems of the school district.

Mrs. J. D. Dean, of the Appleton High School West band parents which is sponsoring the session, said that Mr. and Mrs. David Patterson, of the Drug Council of Outagamie County, Inc., and Robert Van Ralte, assistant state superintendent of schools in charge of instruction services, also are on the panel.

She announced last week the names of other panel members representing the board of education, the administration, citizens, and the Appleton Education Association.

The discussion, open to the public, will be at 7:30 p.m. at West's auditorium. The trimester system, among several economy moves being considered by the administration, will be among the topics discussed.

Ownership Transfer

FAA Submits Tower Pact

The Federal Aviation Administration has submitted a proposed contract to Outagamie County for transfer of ownership of the portable air traffic control tower at the county airport.

The ownership transfer is part of the requirement for FAA operation of the tower.

The contract was referred this morning by the county board's airport committee for legal review.

According to terms of the contract, the county would turn the tower over to the FAA.

which then would operate and maintain it.

Transfer Ownership

Ownership would be transferred back to the county if the FAA discontinues operation of the tower or builds a permanent tower.

Supv. Robert Weyenberg, Kimberly, asked that the FAA more clearly spell out that the portable tower would be returned to the county when a permanent tower is built. The wording of the contract, he said, was too vague.

The FAA has indicated that it plans to take over operation of the tower about May 3. Committee Chairman John Dietz, Appleton, said no formal notification has yet been received, however.

Airport Manager Charles Olson told the committee he is recommending against use of airport land for county solid waste disposal operation.

No Landfill Operation

He said the FAA, while not saying it forbids such operations, was not happy with them. Olson said he was told by Enoch Anderson, of the FAA Minneapolis office, that a landfill operation at Omaha, Neb., had resulted in problems from birds feeding at the site and a landfill at Pierre, S.D., created a smoke problem from the site catching on fire.

An ad hoc committee studying solid waste disposal sites in Outagamie County has recommended airport land as a possible site.

In other action, the committee accepted the low bid of $3,547, from the John Deere Co. for a tractor to be used for mowing at the airport.

They also voted to take bids on five Mottifall mowers, four of which would be self-powered. A tractor, snow blade and a flail mower would be traded in today the color of the filter used in Saturday's test isn't surprising. Even though the actual amount of material caught in the filters is minute in terms of weight, "they're always gray and sometimes black," he said. The city could find that its air is surprisingly clean, he said.

Pond du Lac has been sampling its air for more than a year and last year made public the findings that its air is relatively clean. Evans noted "It's a kind of a feather in a city's rap to say every year our air quality is good."

He described the state's purpose in expanding the number of cities running regular tests as aimed at "getting a statewide fix" on air quality. The agency hopes to continue to program from year to year, to see whether we're gaining on it or losing," the battle against air pollution, he said.

Evans is confident that the tests will show gains. He pointed out that state enforcement of air quality control rules is improving and local communities in many cases are instituting programs of their own. The federal government is taking a variety of steps, he added, including imposing requirements on the auto industry aimed at clamping down on the worst offender of them all, the automobile exhaust pipe.

As older cars leave the highways and are replaced with new ones employing the required exhaust cleaning devices, the automotive source of air pollution should greatly diminish, according to Evans.

Calumet County Could Gain Greatly From Aid Proposal

HILBERT — The uniqueness of Calumet County's school aid situation could be changed to the tune of about $1 million if two bills, AB 34 and AB 46, reach the state lawmakers, and are subsequently passed.

Presently the five districts having schools in the county have a combined average daily membership of 7,409. However, a figure of only 4,475 is recognized by the Department of Public Instruction. The other 2,937 pupils are enrolled in private schools.

The figures do not record those in the Kaukauna, Kimberly or Appleton districts who live in Calumet County, but attend schools in Outagamie County, or those attending private high schools in Menasha, Appleton or St. Nazianz.

Bill AB 34 on "Determining Pupils Enrolled for State Aids" provides that for computing state school aids the "pupils enrolled" is the total number enrolled in the public, private and parochial elementary and high schools in the school district.

Its companion, Bill AB46, "Average Daily Membership to Include Private School Students", states, "presently the school district uses the school membership for the third Friday in September for computing state aids."

This proposal would include in that count the students attending the private schools who live in this public school district. The 110 per cent cost limitation doesn't include these students. This would increase aids to districts with students attending private schools.

Calumet County has one of the largest private school enrollments in the state.

Ratio Close

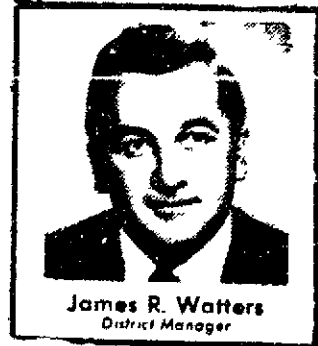

Brillion has 779 pupils in public school and 494 private school students; Chilton, 1,330 public and 544 private school pupils; Hilbert, 472 public and 409 private school pupils; New Holstein, 1,661 public and 1,090 private school students.

Stockbridge is even more unique in that it has more private school students than the number of public school pupils. There are 233 public school students, compared to 300 in the private school.

Total equalized valuation of the five districts is $177,809,400 for which a total of $488,555 is received in general state aids. This is about 45 per cent of the net operating cost.

According to figures prepared by Hilbert Superintendent, Richard Yenchesky, from those received from the county administrators and presented at a legislative hearing on the Bills

County Calls Hearing on Snowmobiles

Snowmobilers and other interested persons will be invited to attend the meeting. The bills were presented by Rep. Tobasz Outagamie County Board's parks committee for 7 p.m. March 18 at the courthouse.

The bills, which seem to be gaining some support in this Committee, who approved the hearing proposal last week, enrollment, are in opposition to said they hope those who at the Citizens for Educational Freedom (CEF) appeal for aid to parents of pupils attending parochial schools.

The Bills AB 34 and AB 46, would provide districts with a large number of students in private or parochial schools with additional funds which are now claimed by large metropolitan districts, thus relieving the already overburdened taxpayers who prefer to send their children to private or parochial schools, Yenchesky indicated. Those supporting the bills believe this way there would be no fear of interference from state authorities, as there is no direct aid to private or parochial schools.

Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton, parks committee secretary, said it could cost up to $7 a mile a week to keep the trails in safe condition.

Figures supplied the committee revealed that 2,808 of the 115,000 snowmobiles registered in Wisconsin as of this month are in Outagamie County.

Steiger Seeks End To Draft by '72

WASHINGTON — Congressmen today prodded the stubborn House Armed Services Committee to enact legislation he and a bipartisan coalition of 86 congressmen support that would end the draft.

The bill is modeled after the year-old recommendations of the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force. Steiger asked the committee to limit the extension on the draft to June 30, 1972, to "provide the time for the necessary measures to take effect."

The one year extension does not detract from defense capability since Congress will retain authority to re-establish the draft if the country is in danger.

The present military pay structure "relies heavily on the power to compel young men to enter the military regardless of the wage level," Steiger told the committee. Many junior enlisted men qualify for public welfare. "There is simply no logic to a system which compels young men to leave civilian life and then forces them to choose between poverty and welfare."

In expanding his statement, Steiger told the committee he disagreed with the Defense Department's plan to wait until fiscal year 1973 before establishing competitive military pay rates.

"If the government has placed upon its citizens an inequitable burden which can be removed at a reasonable cost, we should not be satisfied with anything less than a maximum effort toward that goal. While the Defense Department's program for fiscal year 1972 represents a step in the right direction, it is unsatisfactory, in my opinion, because it perpetuates the use of conscription to reduce the budgetary cost of defense to the general public."

Legislators Comment On Lucey's Proposal To Merge Universities

BY FRANK CHURCH

MADISON — State Rep. Michael G. Ellis, R-Neenah, said today that Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposed merger of state universities and University of Wisconsin boards of regents, and the elimination of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education (COHE), "may have a great deal of merit."

On the other hand, state Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, said the governor's education higher proposals for higher education "have some real problems."

Both legislators, however, along with State Rep. Gordon (Bud) Bradley, R-Oshkosh, said they would have to see "more details" of the proposal before taking a definite stand.

Lucey's proposal "does eliminate duplication (between the two boards and the CCHE), and it would result in savings, especially in the costs of administration," Ellis said today of Lucey's idea. Lucey said Thursday, when he unveiled the plan, that the first-biennial savings to taxpayers would be $4 million.

"Uniformity"

"I definitely like" the idea of building uniformity between the two systems, Ellis said, which he said it looks like what the Lucey proposal would do.

"The state university system has held a second class status in the past," Ellis said, which is "not realistic." He applauded the governor's proposal to gradually equalize UW and state universities' faculty salaries.

"If he's moving towards uniformity of excellence throughout all state universities (UW and state U's), then I'd have to say this was a sound approach," Ellis said of the Lucey idea.

He adds that he would not want to see the UW-Madison image of excellence diluted. "But I do believe we could bring the two systems on a par with one another, at the undergraduate level," he said.

"Efficiency"

Steinhilber said the proposal to merge the state universities into the UW system would destroy the tradition and identity of the state university system. He said "consolidation won't necessarily improve the efficiency of the systems."

"The governing of the state university system has been fairly successful" in the past, Steinhilber noted, while the UW system "has had some real problems with the Madison campus. I wonder if some of the problems of the university would be transferred to the state university system."

"Under such a merger, Steinhilber said.

"If we can eliminate some duplication of effort, fine," Steinhilber said, but he wasn't sure a combination of the boards of regents would do it.

"I'm very skeptical, but I want to see more details before

I reject it out-of-hand," he said. He said he will probably have some of his own proposals for "improving the efficiency" of the university systems of Wisconsin for consideration in the joint finance committee, on which he serves.

Bradley said, "Partially I do, and partially I don't," when asked what if he favored Lucey's merger plan.

"Premier University"

He said he would like to see the UW-Madison campus remain "our premier university." He said a merger plan that would maintain the Madison campus as a separate entity, where there would be an emphasis on research and graduate study, would be the approach to take.

He like Lucey's efforts to cut administrative duplication.

"Our top professors are down in Madison, yet he (Lucey) wants to try and make them all equal" in pay, Bradley said. This would dilute the excellence of the UW-Madison campus, he said. He said UW salaries (not including YW branch campuses like Green Bay) should be maintained higher than other state university faculty salaries.

Bradley and Ellis both thought the merger proposal stood a good chance of passage in some form this biennium.

Opposition is Expected on One-Way Street Proposal

MENASHA — A good crowd is expected at the Elisha D. Smith public library tonight for a public hearing on a proposed one-way traffic couplet around the city's downtown area.

The hearing will start at 7 p.m. Mayor James Adams said he will stop the hearing at 8 p.m.

"I think most of the questions can be answered in that time," he said.

The common council has already approved a resolution asking state highway commission okay of a 120-day trial period for the one-way couplet. The trial period would run from March 15 to July 15. If it is approved by the highway commission and okayed again by the common council after the public hearing tonight.

Opposition

Adams and other officials expect a large and primarily opposing audience at the hearing tonight.

"I don't see why you should be opposed to something before you even try it," Adams said, noting that the day trial period would allow the city to see if the system works. If it doesn't, "we can discontinue it," even before the 120 days are up, he said.

The proposed system would run like this: beginning at the Washington Street - Nicolet Boulevard intersection, it would go north down Nicolet, Ahnape, across the Racine Street bridge and up Racine Street to the intersection with Third Street.

From there it would go west on Third Street to Tayco Street, where it would turn south along Tayco and Washington streets back to the original intersection.

Speed Traffic

The system, proponents like Adams and Police Chief Lester Clark argue, would speed up traffic movement and increase street capacity along the arteries involved. It would cut down or eliminate bottlenecks at places like the north end of the Racine Street bridge. It would get heavy traffic off the city's Main Street, and hopefully make it a more attractive shopping area.

Two prospective developers in a reviving downtown redevelopment project said in a letter released Friday that a one-way couplet would add to the attractiveness of the downtown area for potential retail tenants.

N-M Attorneys Looking for Reply to State Pollution Suit

BY BILL HURRLE

NEENAH-MENASHA — Attorneys for the Twin Cities and the sewerage commission have not yet had a chance to look at the attorney general's summons and complaint. They were out of town at the mid-winter state Bar Association meeting when it was served last Friday.

The complaint must be answered by March 18 or the state will win its case by default. If that happens, the only arguments will be over how large to make the fine. It can run to $5,000 per day of violation.

Commission attorney William Giese said he would file an answer but didn't yet know what it would be. Neenah attorney Duane Philis said he'd have to talk with Giese and Menasha's Richard Steffens.

Handling Solids

The complaint asks for a mandatory injunction "requiring the defendant, by a certain date, to place in operation facilities to adequately handle all solids from the sewage treatment plant catchers."

It says the injunction is being sought because the defendants have indicated they will "continue their failure and neglect to comply, thus perpetuating the public nuisance." The nuisance amounts to 500,000 to 1,000,000 pounds of solids bypassed each month.

Steffens said he would have "more than a defense," and hinted that he would bring in industry as a party to the defense. Industry sends more than 80 per cent of the 20 million gallons per day to the sewage plant. Its capacity is about 12 MGD on a good day.

Dane County

Assistant Attorney General Steven Schur said the answer would be filed in change of revenue if possible, but he said the experts tend to be residents of Madison and that the attorney general wanted to use the expertise of the Dane County court. He said a judge hadn't been assigned as yet.

Neither Steffens nor Schur thought financial arguments would have any success. "They are not broke," Schur said, referring to the cities. "It is a matter of priorities. We are using the courts to put ecological priorities right up at the top."

Improving sludge handling has been estimated to cost $200,000 to $400,000 a year for design and to build a new plant. In Neenah, that would add $1.32 per $1,000 to the 3 years it would take to the tax role, using the $400,000 estimate. In Menasha, it would add about $1.60 to the property tax per $1,000 of valuation.

User Fee

That assumes no equitable user fee would go into effect. Now, taxpayers underwrite industry's use of the plant by more than $500,000 a year. Paying for sewage treatment on the tax rolls means industry only picks up 30 per cent of the tab. Over half of the industrial load to the plant comes from four paper mills: Gilbert Paper Co., Kimberly-Clark Corp., John Bar Association meeting when it was served last Friday.

Strange Paper Co., and Wisconsin Tissue Mills.

Steffens pointed out that lack of money had never been a defense in labor arbitration and experiments with making rates not in damage suits. "Judge handling more efficient, but said "In summation, He predicted the suit would put more heat on getting a user fee. "The council can't afford to fiddle around dolting it's and crossing it's. The time for horsing with engineering studies is over," Steffens said.

The sewerage commission defended its sludge bypassing in putting sludge handling as the past by pointing to Donohue first priority for its engineers to and Associates of Sheboygan work on faulty design. The four-year-old plant never worked at the 18MGD capacity those engineers were aiming for.

The defense was sent to Thomas G. Frangos, head of the Bureau of Environmental Protection in the Department of Natural Resources, before the matter was referred to the State attorney general for action. It listed six improvements and experiments with making rates not in damage suits. "Judge handling more efficient, but said "In summation, He predicted the suit would put more heat on getting a user fee. "The council can't afford to fiddle around dolting it's and crossing it's. The time for horsing with engineering studies is over," Steffens said.

The commission is on record MGD, and has gone on record putting sludge handling as the past by pointing to Donohue first priority for its engineers to and Associates of Sheboygan work on

Fulbright Wants Summons Power Over Top Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. American president to commit J. W. Fulbright says he is con- sidering a bill to force top ad- ministration officials to appear before congressional commit- tees when asked.

The Arkansas Democrat made the disclosure Sunday af- ter accusing Secretary of State William P. Rogers and White House foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger of ignoring re- quests to testify on Vietnam be- fore his Senate Foreign Rela- tions Committee.

"I hesitate to have subpoenas issued and testing this in the courts," he said. "I am thinking of introducing a bill."

Fulbright said later the bill was in the drafting stage.

He was interviewed on the CBS radio and television pro- gram "Face the Nation."

The Arkansas Democrat also had criticism for the Nixon ad- ministration's move into Laos and Cambodia, saying the op- erations risk "a very great chance of provoking Red Chinese entry into the war in Vietnam."

Former Vice President Hu- bert H. Humphrey also had harsh words for the Nixon pol- icy in Vietnam Sunday.

The Minnesota senator said if he had been elected president in 1968, all American troops now would be out of Vietnam. He also indicated the United States should decline to provide air support for South Vietnamese forces when American with- drawal is complete.

The veteran Democrat ap- peared on NBC's "Meet the Press" interview.

The United States' entry into South Vietnam also was the subject of a congressional resolu- tion introduced today.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D- Mo., proposed sharply curtailing the future power of an Eagleton's resolution contains similarities but draws tighter restrictions than a war powers measure introduced last month by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. Both the Eagleton and Javits measures limit to 30 days the power of a president to commit American forces without congressional approval. Both set procedures to assure prompt congressional consideration and both specify the restrictions would not apply to hostilities al- ready in progress, such as Viet- nam, Laos or Cambodia.

Both the joint resolution intro- duced by Eagleton and the Jav- its bill allow the president to commit American forces to re- pel an attack on the United States or its armed forces.

The Javits bill permits use of forces to be used to protect the lives and property of U.S. na- tionals abroad, while the Egle- ton measure permits it to with- draw American citizens from a foreign country in which they may be threatened.

Both proposals also permit use of American forces to com- ply with U.S. national commit- ments specifically approved by Congress. While the Javits bill says authority must stem from a legislative act "specifically in- tended to give effect to such a commitment," the Eagleton res- olution says specific authoriza- tion is required if the approval for committing U.S. forces is in- cluded in an appropriations bill.

The Eagleton proposal con- tains a provision specifically up- holding the president's constitu- tional powers to send troops in hot pursuit of retreating enemy ground and air forces and to eliminate the danger of an im- minent attack on the United States.

Harder Fighting Seen for Saigon Force

SAIGON (AP) — American transports flew hundreds of South Vietnamese reinforce- ments to the northern front to- day and the U.S. Command sent more helicopters to strengthen the allied air and ground drive in Laos.

The drive to cut North Viet- nam's Ho Chi Minh trail net- work began its fourth week. The intensity of the fighting eased somewhat, but an American field commander predicted hard fighting ahead.

Some of the reinforcements already are crossing into Laos to bolster the weary men strung along Route 9 and to the north and south of the highway. A spokesman in Saigon, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said South Viet- namese strength across the bor- der remains at 16,000 troops, but the South Vietnamese have suf- fered more than 1,000 casual- ties. Informal sources said up to 16,000 additional troops were being flown to the northern sec- tor.

Forward Headquarters

South Vietnamese forward headquarters issued a revised casualty report which said 390 Saigon troops have been killed, 99 are missing and 981 have been wounded in Laos. Field re- ports indicate the losses are much higher. The report also claimed that 3,227 North Viet- namese troops have been killed.

Maj. Richard Gardner, a spokesman for the U.S. Com- mand, said 1,400 of the enemy had been killed by American air strikes. Scores of scheduled military passenger flights were can- celed, and the four-engine C130s diverted to the reinforcement missions.

Khe Sanh

Gardner said additional American helicopters had been moved to Khe Sanh to support the Laotian operation, but he re- fused to say how many. Other sources said they would replace those shot down and also would increase the fleet, which num- bered about 600 at the start of the Laotian operation.

Some of the helicopters came from the 1st Air Cavalry Divi- sion, which normally operates in the Saigon region, military sources said.

Lt. Gen. James W. Suther- land, commander of the 9,000 U.S. troops acting as a blocking force on the Vietnamese side of the border, said the North Viet- namese appear to be marshal- ing all their forces for an at- tempt to thwart the allied effort to cut the supply network through southern Laos.

"This is it," said Sutherland. "The enemy has chosen to react with everything he's got left so it appears we'll have to fight him right here."

"It's real tough fighting. It's a hard fight. Right now, we're op- posed by about seven regiments plus a lot of antiaircraft fire and artillery and some tank bat- tal- ions."

A North Vietnamese regiment at full strength totals 2,900 men.

Very little contact was report- ed in the Laotian operation Sun- day night and this morning. Field reports said the rem-

'Too Late to Stop SST'

SST hearings in the House and Senate.

A House vote on whether to halt funds and possibly kill the U.S. SST program could come in two weeks. Congress is sup- posed to make a final decision by the end of the month.

Volpe accused SST opponents of the same kind of "get a horse philosophy" that greeted auto- mobiles, and the sewing ma- chine, steamboat and airplane. He said American technology has overcome the SST's noise problem—the government an- nounced last week a break- through toward an engine as quiet as present jetliners—and said he is confident it can over- come any environmental prob- lems as well.

Environmental Research But if the test flights and con- current environmental research show the SST will be "irrepara- ble harm to our environment," Volpe said.

"I will do everything possible to ensure that a U.S. SST does not fly in commercial service— and this is a commitment I make on behalf of this adminis- tration."

Volpe said it is inconceivable America would give up its world aviation lead and said leaving SST production to other coun- tries would cost 50,000 direct American jobs and $22 billion impact on world balance of pay- ments over 12 years.

"This is the moment of deci- sion for this program," Volpe said, "and in a larger sense for the nation's entire attitude to- ward the advancement of tech- nology."

Concorde in Trouble

Opponents get their hearing Tuesday and will emphasize both the alleged hazards to the environment and disputed re- ports of the British-French Con- corde is in trouble, giving Amer- ica no competition to match oth- er than the Soviet Tupolev-144."

which is scheduled for its first commercial flight late this year. The hearings, three days in the House and then two in the Senate, are on the adminis- tration's request for full $290 mil- lion funding this year to keep the SST alive.

Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcom- mittee hearings, said the re- quest, possibly knocked down to $255 million, could be ready for a House vote by March 16.

The question then would go to the Senate, which voted 52 to 41 last year to halt federal money for the SST.

"I don't think they could spend it (the full $290 million) if we gave it to them," McFall said in an interview. "I under- stand what they really need is $255 million. But that's why we called these hearings; to find out."

Original Request

The administration's original $290 million request was trimmed to $210 million by the last Congress in a law expiring March 31. The administration is asking the new Congress to put it back up to $290 million retro- active for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Whether Congress will ap- prove any further money for the entire $1.5 billion program to develop and test fly two 1,800 mile-an-hour SST prototypes by 1973 is an open question.

A survey two weeks ago showed opponents had 202 House votes—only 16 short of a majority—to 188 for backers. There were 42 undecided or un- committed.

Elections in India Begin in Violence

NEW DELHI (AP) — Two persons were killed and scores injured in India today at the start of a 10-day national elec- tion for a new Parliament.

Most of the violence occurred in eastern Bihar State, where voting had to be suspended in six polling stations. Two persons were killed and three injured in a clash outside a rural voting booth.

A 23-year-old man was stabbed following an argument with someone trying to get ahead in a long line of voters. In four other polling stations in Bihar, men ran off with the ballot boxes, forcing suspension of the voting. At one of the booths the polling officer was assaulted.

Voting Suspended

Four persons armed with pis- tols raided a voting booth in central Rajasthan State, locked up the presiding electoral offi- cer and stole the ballots. Voting resumed after new ballots ar- rived.

Voting was suspended in a vil- lage in southern Madras follow- ing a clash between supporters of rival candidates. In Madras, the capital of the state, opposing political workers pelted each other with soda bottles, but vot- ing went on anyway.

Reports from Surat, in central Gujarat State, said numerous clashes broke out and several persons were injured in a con- stituency where former Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai, an arch foe of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, is seeking re- election.

In Lucknow, the capital of Ut- tar Pradesh, Mrs. Gandhi's home state, police said they had foiled a plan by Maoist terror- ists to throw bombs at polling stations.

But in mountainous Assam voters turned up in bullock carts singing folk songs. In the vast desert regions, camels brought voters to the polls.

Children played in the streets, on holiday from school while their teachers manned polling stations.

An estimated 75 million of the 275 million voters were eligible to go to the polls today. Ballot- ing was held in 101 of the 518 parliamentary districts.

Mrs. Gandhi has asked for a mandate to remove the dispari- ty between the nation's rich and poor.

Her party, in its manifesto, said it would nationalize the general insurance business if re- turned to power.

Two years ago, Mrs. Gandhi nationalized the top 14 domestic banks. She also has tried to a- void the special privileges and $6.4 million annual privy pur- chase of the princely maharaja the maneuver she devised re- versed by the Supreme Court.

Old Movie Props Bring $364,000 On Auction Block

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Twentieth Century-Fox, which use the money, has made quick $364,480 by auctioning about 2,000 unneeded props, including a teddy bear, a S. bottle and a fire engine.

Spokesmen for the finan- cially troubled movie studio said day after the four-day auc- tion that the net was $100,000 their expectations.

The highest price paid for anything was $11,000 for a horse-drawn fire engine used in "Hello Dolly." The win- ning bidder was an anonymous caller.

A 13-foot-long model of a Japanese aircraft carrier used in "Tora Tora Tora" brought $3,500, an empty Scotch whisky bottle used by Humphrey Bogart in "The Left Hand of God" brought $90, a $3 teddy bear used by Shirley Temple in "Heidi" brought $450.

Fox still has about 100,000 props. A similar auction months ago by another studio, with financial problems, disposed of many more props. Sources said MGM made $1.3 million.

Many Holdouts Remain

Johnny Bench, of Reds, Okays Pact

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

The pen, they say, is mightier than the sword. Maybe that's why a lot of major league baseball players don't want to pick one up.

Although Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, California's Clyde Wright, San Francisco's Bobby Bonds, Atlanta's Cleto Boyer and Detroit's Aurelio Rodriguez came to terms Sunday, a simple autograph is becoming the year's rarest object as far as worried general managers are concerned.

Things are so bad that Donn Clendenon, slugging first baseman of the New York Mets, even resigned from his executive position with an Atlanta pen company. Only two years ago, Clendenon threatened to quit baseball for the world of ballpoints.

Others Unsigned

Among the unsigned are San Francisco's Willie Mays, Washington's Frank Howard, Atlanta's Orlando Cepeda, Houston's Joe Morgan, Oakland's Campy Campaneris, Mike Andrews of the Chicago White Sox, Tony Oliva, Ron Perranoski, Cesar Tovar and Bill Zepp of the Minnesota Twins and an even larger contingent of Cincinnati Reds—including Pete Rose, and Tony Perez, Lee May, Jim Merritt, Wayne Granger, Clay Carroll and Bernie Carbo.

Bench, Cincinnati's 23-year-old super catcher, had been demanding a three-year pact for $500,000. He said he was happy though after signing for what General Manager Bob Hawsum indicated was less than $100,000 for 1971.

"Everything is very well," Bench said. "If I have a good year and we win the pennant, again then we'll go from there."

Wright, California's 22-game-winning lefty, signed for an estimated $37,500, third sacker Boyer of the Braves took a slight cut from the $47,500 he made last season. Giants outfielder Bonds settled for $50,000 and infielder Rodriguez showed up at the Tigers' camp and signed at once.

Mays Hits Double

Mays didn't meet with Giants owner Horace Stoneham but did get into a squad game and hit a 400-foot sacrifice fly and a double.

Manager Ted Williams of the Senators asked owner Bob Short about Howard and Short replied, "He wants too much money." General Manager Spec Richardson of the Astros said he isn't making much progress with Morgan and White Sox GM Stu Holcomb threatened to break precedent and divulge the full details of negotiations with second baseman Andrews, obtained in a trade with Boston.

Holcomb said the White Sox have offered Andrews a raise and added that he has drafted a letter to the player and his lawyer notifying them of the club's right to hold Andrews at last year's salary if an agreement isn't reached by March 10.

Trappers Likely to Oppose Bill for Protection of Species of Wildlife

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Trappers of wild fur will probably ask for deletions from the list of wildlife species proposed for absolute protection under law in a bill presented to the legislature by the floorleader of the state senate Democratic caucus, state department of natural resources officers believe.

Sen Fred Risser of Madison is the author of a bill that would prohibit the sale, processing or distribution of the pelts or other products of designated animals. A Risser aide said the list of species was taken from a survey which listed endangered wildlife on a national basis.

But the measure includes such animals as beaver, muskrat, mink and otter, all of which have been authorized for limited trapping seasons under the delegated powers to the DNR, and several of which are comparatively important species in aggregate harvest. The state licenses private muskrat production areas, for example. Beaver in some sections are so abundant, and cause such extensive damage in obstructing and flooding trout streams, that the state provides a trapping service to remove and transplant them to non-trout fishing areas. Wild mink and otter have been regularly harvested under trapping rules of the state agency.

Other species proposed to be listed as contraband in the Risser bill will probably have less resistance, officials feel. There is precedent for such prohibition of commercial dealing in the pelts or other products of such species in other states.

Mauston, Fall Creek Bite Dust

Two Rated Teams Weekend Victims

By BOB GREENE Associated Press Sports Writer

Only two of the Associated Press top-ranked high school basketball teams fell by the wayside in the opening round of the 1971 WIAA state tournament. But a snowstorm accompanied by high winds created much more havoc Saturday night, forcing a number of postponements.

Mauston, the Big Ten's eighth-ranked team, was upset by Black River Falls on Friday. Then Saturday, Black River Falls fell to Sparta, 65-61, in overtime, making Sparta the favorite in this weekend's Tomah Regional.

Fall Creek, fourth-ranked in the Little Ten, lost Friday night to fifth-rated Osseo - Fairchild. It was Fall Creek's only defeat of the year.

All other members of the AP's Big and Little Tens advanced to regional play. This weekend will find the toughest regionals located at Two Rivers, Baraboo, Rhinelander and DeForest.

At Two Rivers, Manitowoc, the Big Ten's sixth-ranked school, takes on Sheboygan South while Kohler, No. 2 in the Little Ten, meets a tough Kiel five.

Two members of the Little Ten—Pardeeville, No. 3 and Cambridge, tied for 10th—are at DeForest. Pardeeville plays Wisconsin Heights while Cambridge takes on Lodi.

Rhinelander, No. 4 in the Big Ten, meets Park Falls and Glenden, No. 7 in the Little Ten, plays Antigo to make up the foursome at Rhinelander.

A Happy Jack Nicklaus has just parred the 72nd and final hole of the prestigious PGA tournament Sunday to finish two strokes ahead of Billy Casper. With the win, Nicklaus became the first golfer to win each of the "big 4" tournaments at least twice. (AP Wire-photo).

Wins PGA by Two Strokes Nicklaus Eyes Sweep of 'Big Four'

By HUBERT MIZELL
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Nobody has ever won the PGA, U.S. Open, Masters and British Open in the same year.
Jack Nicklaus has it on his mind.
"I've got one leg and I'm thinking about the Masters," he said. "And, that's a golf course I know I can play."
The svelte Golden Bear shot 73 Sunday for a seven-under-par 281 total to win the 53rd Professional Golfers Association Championship at the tough PGA National Golf Club.
"Normally, I head for the Masters trying to get a first leg on the Big Four," said the 31-year-old fairways giant. "This time I've got the first leg."
The PGA, normally the last of the Big Four events in August, was moved to February for one time only.
The Masters comes up in April at Augusta, Ga., the U.S. Open is scheduled at Merion Country Club at Ardmore, Pa., in June and the British Open at Royal Birkdale at Southport, England, in July.
"I've only played one series at Merion, but it was a doozie," said Nicklaus. "I'm sure if I go over and work hard, I can play Royal Birkdale."
Ben Hogan won the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open in 1953, then didn't enter the PGA. The latter was a match play event in those days and Hogan preferred medal play, so he stayed home.
"All pro golfers try to set themselves apart from the rest," said Nicklaus. "The major championships do this. I've got it now and want to win more than anybody who ever lived."
Bobby Jones is the leader with 13 Nicklaus and Walter Hagen have 11 and Palmer, eight.
Lead Sliced to One
Nicklaus' road to Sunday's PGA triumph was a bit rocky. The Ohio Bomber bogeyed three of the opening five holes and led by one shot on several occasions.
"I wasn't ever really worried," he said. "I knew if I did my part, I would win."
Nicklaus began the day with a four-stroke lead over Gary Player, five on Gibby Gilbert and seven shots over the other also-rans.
As it turned out, Billy Casper, a two-time U.S. Open king, made a charge at the end to finish two behind Nicklaus and 52-year-old smooth swinger Tommy Bolt shot a closing 69 to take third at 284.
"I never looked at the names, only the numbers on the scoreboard," Nicklaus said. "I knew where I stood."
Nicklaus' putting keyed his 11th major championship and the tip that made it possible came during a friendly bridge game eight days ago.
Tip From Beaman
"Deane Beaman told me I wasn't finishing my backswing on outts," Nicklaus said. "He helped me before. I stopped playing bridge and went outside at 11 p.m. to hit some balls on the AstroTurf around my pool."
That moonlight episode spurred Nicklaus to his "best putting tournament ever" in a week where his key shots on the green kept the long hitter from Columbus a step ahead of the field.
Casper, who leaves today for a golfing trip to Morocco where he'll play as guest of King Hassan II, sat in the press tent as Nicklaus birdied the 17th hole and parred No. 18 to win by two. "I figured I'd be a couple short," said Casper. "I began the day with the idea that a

Pro Football Dinner Lombardi Impact Evident

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Wisconsin Pro Football Writers dinner Sunday night had everything from the acerbic New York wit of Howard Cosell to the homespun charm of Dan Devine and the All-America freshness of Bart Starr.
But it was clearly dominated by a man who wasn't even there. And that was fitting, for no one ever dominated the Wisconsin sports scene—or maybe all of pro football—quite like the late Vince Lombardi.
The highlight of the third annual dinner, which played to more than 700 at the Pfister Hotel, was a poignant film clip presented by Cosell, the television commentator.
The excerpts were from a profile on Lombardi's life, showing him as coach of the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins, and brought out some of the many depths of a complex man.
Lombardi's widow, Marie, presented the Vince Lombardi award for dedication to football to George Blanda, the 43-year-old quarterback and placekicker who won five dramatic games for the Oakland Raiders last year.
Lombardi Impact
Lombardi's memory and the impact he made on the Packers probably will always be felt. But the dinner also was a time of looking ahead.
"Phil Bengtson in all candor, found out what it's like to try to succeed a legend," said Cosell, the toastmaster. "But I know Dan Devine and I know that he will live with the legend and let be himself. I believe he will be very successful as the Packers' new coach."
Devine, recalling football clinics he had attended with Lombardi, said he holds much the same coaching philosophy.
"I know the Packers are not just another team—they're something special with their great tradition," Devine said. "I hope to keep it that way, and we'll do all we can to provide Wisconsin fans with the type of team you deserve."
Echoes of Enthusiasm
Starr, the Packer quarterback who has been the subject of retirement rumors, echoed Devine's enthusiasm for the future.
"The Packers are a very special team, the yardstick against which others are measured. They are responsible for all the opportunities I have had to do things for my city, state and nation," he said.
"Coach Devine, you can see

What is handmade Bourbon?

Simply stated, it's Bourbon made by people instead of by machines.
Back in the old days all Bourbon was handmade. But that was before the industrial, technical and scientific revolutions changed almost everything.
Handmade Bourbon brands today are about in the same category as cigar-store Indians. Cabin Still is one of the few left—and most of the others are expensive.

MU, Fordham Expecting NCAA Bids

Lou Peterson Hits 574 in Couples Loop

When it's time to replay the day taste is the name of the game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Marquette and Fordham expect a ring and Memphis State hopes against a runaround Tuesday when invitations go out for the post-season college basketball tournaments.

The NCAA probably will tap Marquette and Fordham for at large berths, but the NIT could be looking past Memphis State.

Now that we've won our 13th game, it would be very disappointing if we didn't get an NIT bid," said Memphis State Coach Gene Bartow after the Tigers pounded Wichita State 85-77 Saturday night and threw the Missouri Valley Conference race into turmoil.

Memphis, with an 18-7 record, is 8-5 in the Missouri Valley race and still has a chance to catch front-running Louisville 8-4. Winner of the conference gets an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament—something Bartow wouldn't turn down, either.

Identify Crisis

Another club which hopes to join Memphis State in New York this month is UC-Santa Barbara, with a 20-6 record against some pretty tough competition.

"Our problem is one of identity," said UC-Santa Barbara Coach Ralph Barkey. "People don't know who we are. But we have made overtures to the Eastern people and we are hopeful of an NIT bid."

The Gauchos finishing with their best record in history, wound up second to Long Beach State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The champions probably will go the NCAA playoffs, leaving the door open for Santa Barbara in the NIT.

But the California club, which has beaten Memphis State and Louisiana Tech, a highly-ranked small college power, will have to beat back Hawaii's bid in its Far West bailiwick. Hawaii is having one of its best years with a 22-4 record.

Six More Candidates

Other teams considered NIT material are St. John's of New York, Providence, Holy Cross, Syracuse, Rutgers, Massachusetts and St. Bonaventure.

The NCAA, meanwhile, has several entrants already—Penn Western, Kentucky, University of the Pacific, Miami of Ohio and Weber State. All have won conference championships.

Penn., the country's fourth-ranked team, plastered Yale 93-63 Saturday night to win its second straight Ivy League crown. Western Kentucky No. 9 clouted Murray State 73-59 to cop the Ohio Valley Conference for the second straight year, and Pacific pasted Los Angeles Loyola 88-75 to take the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Miami, Ohio, won the Mid-American Conference and Weber State took the Big Sky Conference last week.

Marquette's whirlwind Warriors have won 23 games this year and 35 in a row and must be considered the number one independent choice from the Midwest region by the NCAA selection committee. Fordham's cinderella team from New York with a 21-2 mark appeared to be a likely choice from the East.

The No. 2-ranked Warriors hammered Tulane 90-76 and Fordham, No. 11, took apart New York University 102-87 in Saturday's action. Duquesne, ranked No. 8 with a 19-3 mark, routed Niagara 99-69 Sunday and must be considered another likely at-large choice from the East.

Notre Dame and Dayton, two teams in the running for an at-large berth from the Midwest, played tonight to decide their fate. Notre Dame smashed St. John's 11 minutes, 46.5 seconds in the 200-yard backstroke and Salts-stein won the diving competition.

Tom Wildman and Bill Weber had two firsts each for the large berth from the Midwest, Redmen Wildman set a Law-play record with a time of 1:00.99 and Weber took the 200-yard and 100-yard freestyle events. The old mark was 1:15.9 set by Tocher Mitchell in 1968.

Wildman also won the 500-

Lou Peterson cracked a 225 game and a 574 series to lead the women keglers in the Country Couples League at the 41 Super Bowl in bowling action Sunday night.

Saturday kegling in the High ball Couples League at the Super Bowl saw Marv Schnese hit a 624 series for the lone honor score.

Reported earlier (from Friday night) was the 702 national honor count rolled by John Rieth in the Fox Valley League at the Little Chute Recreation Lanes. Rieth had games of 223, 275 and 292. His high line included eight pins in the first frame and then a string of 10 strikes in a row.

Other leading totals from the Fox Valley circuit included Cunny Hinkens 249-651, "Spike" Versteegen 617, Lou Bellin 605, Casey Reichart 590, Jack Lamers 581, "Pro" Walker 234-581, Don Erdmann 577, Dave Austin 576, Jerry Lamers 232-575, Leo King 226-575 and "Iggy" Lenz 225.

Fritz Ankerson slammed a 615 series for honors in the Tavern League at Hahn's Lanes Friday night. Bud Otis was runnerup with a 603 series while Bob Burmeister hit 590, Jerry Ellenbecker 588, Dave Schoenhaar 583, Dan Mittag 581, Mickey McGuire 575 and "Rip" Winkel had a 229 game.

Posting seconds for the Vikes were Scott Nelson, Bill Denis, Terry Nilles and Ron Lee.

Homicide Charge Filed in Auto Death

Charges of homicide by the use of an automobile while under the influence of an intoxicant and driving after revocation were lodged this morning against a 22-year-old Green Bay man whose car was involved in a fatal traffic accident early Feb. 21.

Dist. Atty. James Long brought the counts against John J. Poquette. Additionally, he lodged a count of illegal use of a driver's license against Reginald Elm, 23, route 2, West De Pere.

A six-man coroner's jury recommended the homicide charge Friday after an inquest called by Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps.

Donald C. La Count, 17, route 2, West De Pere, died about 1 1/2 hours after his car and the one driven by Poquette collided at 1:40 a.m. Feb. 21 on County Trunk E, one mile south of Oneida. County police said La Count, who had been traveling north on E, was turning left into his driveway when the accident occurred.

Police said the Poquette car struck La Count's small foreign car broadside, as Poquette, also traveling north, attempted to pass.

Poquette was found indigent this morning in an appearance before County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, and an attorney was appointed to represent him at county expense. Schaefer set bond of $1,000 on the homicide charge and directed a bail study.

Elm's case was continued for consultation with an attorney.

Both men were set to come back into court Tuesday afternoon.

The testimony of two county patrolmen, Richard Rohm and James Brown, and a passenger in the Poquette car, Linda Metoxen, 18, route 2, West De Pere, accused Poquette of being intoxicated when the crash occurred.

Additionally, according to testimony of Miss Metoxen during the inquest, Elm gave Poquette his (Elm's) driver's license immediately after the crash. Rohm and Brown said during the inquest that Poquette produced Elm's driver's license at the scene and identified himself as Elm.

Poquette testified that at the time of the accident, his own driver's license was under revocation.

Poquette faces a maximum five-year prison term on the charge of homicide by intoxicated use of an automobile, or a fine of $2,500, or both.

Credit Unions Push Changes In State Code

Legislation Would Increase Lending, Other Union Powers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A legislative drive by the Wisconsin Credit Union League, representing a cooperative service of more than 750 units with about half a billion dollars in capital, may arouse some resistance in elements of the commercial banking community, according to reports reaching the Capitol.

The measure offered by the league was described as an attempt to modernize the state's regulatory code governing the unions usually operating within industrial and commercial employment units and to "shape the Wisconsin law into a flexible instrument of service."

But the legislation as presented would also considerably expand the authorized scope of lending activity and auxiliary financial services by the credit unions, including some now limited to commercial banking.

There are about 500,000 credit union members in the state.

One of the declared objectives of the league is to persuade the legislature to establish an independent commissioner of credit unions as the regulatory authority in the field. The units are now supervised by a subordinate official in the state banking department, holding tenure under civil service, and answerable to the appointive commissioner of banking.

The proposal has a precedent. Historically, the savings and loan associations were subject to the regulation of the commissioner of banking. Several years ago the legislature authorized the creation of a separate regulatory department for those organizations under an appointive commissioner.

John P. Hill of the league said that the general objective of its legislative push is to accommodate the services of the unions to the demands of the era.

Some of the provisions would extend their operating rights considerably, as in "allowing credit unions to use financial service consistent with modern practice, including deposit accounts with pre-declared dividends, credit cards, pension savings programs and deferred income accounts."

The unions would be able to borrow more freely, up to 50 per cent of their savings account aggregate, as against the current rule of 25 per cent for periods of six months only. Another provision would repeal unsecured limits in present law and permit boards to set their own policy on such loans. Present law limits signature loans to $1,000.

Hill said that the states of Kansas and Texas recently enacted similar revisions in their regulatory laws.

Appleton is about to get caught up in a legend.

The legend of $1000 Beer.

It all began back in 1891...when brewers were just beginning to use substitutes in brewing...to cut costs and speed up the brewing process. But one brewer refused to change. To make his point, he offered the strangest reward in history.

A reward for a beer. One thousand dollars to any man who could prove substitutes for pure malt and hops were used in the brewing of his unusual beer. People came from far and near...to test his beer and claim the thousand dollars. But no man ever collected that reward, and it became a legend as $1000 Beer.

Built itself a reputation as a man's way to put out a thirst. Well, $1000 Beer is still $1000 Beer.

For all these years, it's been brewed to the exacting standards laid down back in 1891. It's still a natural process beer. Bold. Robust. Mellowed by imported hops and slow leisurely aging.

Today that legendary beer is named Miller $1000 Beer. And it has an added touch of refreshing lightness...to make the last one as rewarding as the first.

It's a beer a man can stick with... day after day. Get together with Miller $1000 Beer.

You'll find it on tap, by the case and in six packs. Try the beer with a name...and a reputation to live up to. Get caught up in the legend of $1000 Beer.

Capitol Extensively Damaged in Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — An early morning bomb blast linked to a protest against the U.S.-supported invasion of Laos ripped up an interior section of the Senate wing of the Capitol today.

The blast caused extensive damage but no injuries. "This is apparently a political bombing," said Senate Majority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Senate Sergeant at Arms Robert G. Dunphy said a male caller who contacted the Capitol switchboard to give advance warning of the blast mentioned the Laotian invasion.

Scott had earlier quoted Dunphy as saying a letter also had been found linked to the bombing, but Dunphy said that was a "misunderstanding."

identity of the male caller who warned the Capitol switchboard: "The Capitol building will blow up in 30 minutes."

Half an hour later, at 1:22 a.m. EST, the bomb exploded. Capitol Police Chief James Powell said one of his officers was within 200 feet of the blast but escaped injury despite windows breaking "right over his head."

A red brick wall on one side of the men's room was badly cracked and bulging out into the corridor. Plaster molding on the corridor wall was blown away and littered the floor along with glass from broken windows.

Gold lace curtains were pushed out against and sometimes through broken windows all the way down to the ornately painted committee and reception rooms on the north end of the Senate chamber. The front door, another 50 feet away, was broken.

between 1 a.m. and 1:32 a.m. when the blast occurred.

Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., returned from viewing the damage and said he believes the warning phone call and its early-morning timing bear the earmarks of organization.

McGovern Will Visit Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The only announced 1972 presidential candidate, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., will get a big head start in campaigning for next year's Wisconsin presidential primary by making a whirlwind trip through the state next weekend.

The liberal Vietnam war critic will arrive in the state Friday and make appearances that day in Milwaukee and Madison.

McGovern will then go to Wausau and Waushara Saturday and Racine Sunday before returning to Milwaukee, and then going back to Washington Monday.

Men's Room

The blast gutted a men's room directly across from the Old Senate Chamber, blasted doors off their hinges in several surrounding rooms, and blew out windows all the way out to the senate's front door perhaps 125 feet.

Bricks, doors, lighting and other fixtures were piled high in a corridor when newsmen were allowed a brief inspection about six hours after the blast.

The men's room—open to the public but generally only known about by people working in the area—was a gray hulk filled with tiny pieces of plumbing fixtures and gray plaster rubble. It was almost impossible to tell it had been a rest room.

Barber Shop

The Senate barber shop, across a small hallway from the men's room, was badly littered and mirrors and windows were shattered but the barber chairs and other heavy equipment were not mangled or moved.

The outside of the historic Old Senate Chamber, which was used from 1800 to 1808 and was the scene of President John Adams inauguration, Nov. 22, 1800, was not damaged.

Capitol police said there had been six bomb threats since Christmas. Chief Powell said routine procedures were used

Officials Incensed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and members of the Senate expressed shock today over an explosion that caused extensive damage to the Senate wing of the Capitol building.

"A shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans," was Nixon's description in a statement telephoned from aboard Air Force One as the President flew to Des Moines, Iowa.

"The President feels that this act of violence is totally deplorable and will be condemned by all Americans," said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

"The President feels that the Capitol is a building that belongs to all Americans and symbolizes a form of government that for 192 years has provided a means for peaceful change," Ziegler said.

Earlier, when he learned of the explosion, Nixon called FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover from the White House for an assessment of the damage.

On board the presidential plane, Nixon called Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield as senators expressed their amazement and outrage over the explosion.

"Anyone who would plant a bomb like that any place, let alone the nation's Capitol, has to be a revolutionary or completely mad," Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., had a similar opinion.

"I don't know what group it is, of course," Dominick said. "But any group that tries to destroy something with the history of this nation behind it is obviously out of their mind—and very, very dangerous."

Other comments:

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.: "It might represent merely the act of a few individuals, but it is quite serious from any viewpoint. And it is to be deeply regretted that the site of our representative government would have to be guarded, as would be necessary for a time, anyway."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination: "I deeply regret it, of course. I can only say it's a tragic, barbaric thing for anyone to do."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt.: "It's not totally unexpected, as I think the police have been keeping close watch, but weekends are not good. I have to say I'm not surprised."

President Pushing Proposals

Nixon Takes Revenue Plan to Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Nixon, seeking support for his controversial 1971 legislative goals from the legislature of rural-oriented Iowa, said today his ideas would "lead America to a new birth of greatness."

In an address prepared for a joint session of Iowa's legislature, Nixon argued strongly for federal revenue sharing and reorganization of government, including the Agriculture Department.

"I want those decisions that affect rural America made by people who know rural America, and the people who know a place best live there," he said. "To put it bluntly I believe that legislators in Iowa know better than bureaucrats in Washington, D.C. what is best for Iowa." Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and four Cabinet members, Nixon flew to Iowa for the first in a series of regional forays to promote administration legislation.

Nixon took the occasion to announce that he is adding $100 million to the $1 billion he originally proposed in special revenue sharing for rural community development.

He said the $1.1 billion total for the coming fiscal year represents "24 per cent more for rural development programs than is being made available to the states under existing categorical grant programs."

In all, the chief executive seeks $16 billion in various types of revenue sharing, which he said would eliminate "the cumbersome restrictions that now follow federal funds."

"If the lessons of the past decades mean anything," he said, "they mean that as power has been concentrated more and more in Washington, as decisions have been made by remote control, the special needs of our rural communities and of the great heartland of America more and more have either been neglected or even gone unrecognized."

Reducing Cabinet

The chief executive also argued at length for cutting the present 12 Cabinet departments to eight and, in the process, abolishing the Agriculture Department and reassigning its functions.

Contending that the American farmer has changed while the federal government has not, Nixon said:

"The farmer is a man of many talents now—a businessman, a technician, a scientist—often a man who makes his living in more lines of work than farming alone."

"The rural community is becoming increasingly diversified in its economic base and its land use and its population patterns. While all this has gone on, we have sat in Washington with the same Department of Agriculture we have had since 1862."

The key to his effort to overcome farm bloc resistance to abolishing the department was this:

"Under the present setup, only one Cabinet department represents the farmer. Under my proposed reorganization four Cabinet secretaries—half the Cabinet—will be speaking up for the farmer when his diverse interests are at stake."

"I submit that this is not less representation, but more—and more effective representation, because the rural interest will be represented wherever decisions are being made that affect

that interest."

The President said, "these proposals I have made are not Republican proposals or Democratic proposals. I have offered them in a bipartisan spirit and I seek bipartisan support."

Nixon today sent Congress a first annual report on government services to rural America and said it showed "important gains in the federal government's concern for the well being of rural areas."

"As examples, in fiscal 1970, we increased federal support for waste treatment grants in rural areas by 174 per cent over the previous year, and increased manpower development grants in such areas more than 50 per cent," he said.

"We have long recognized much of the housing in rural America is substandard—in fact about half of all substandard housing is in rural America. We have made real gains in this area."

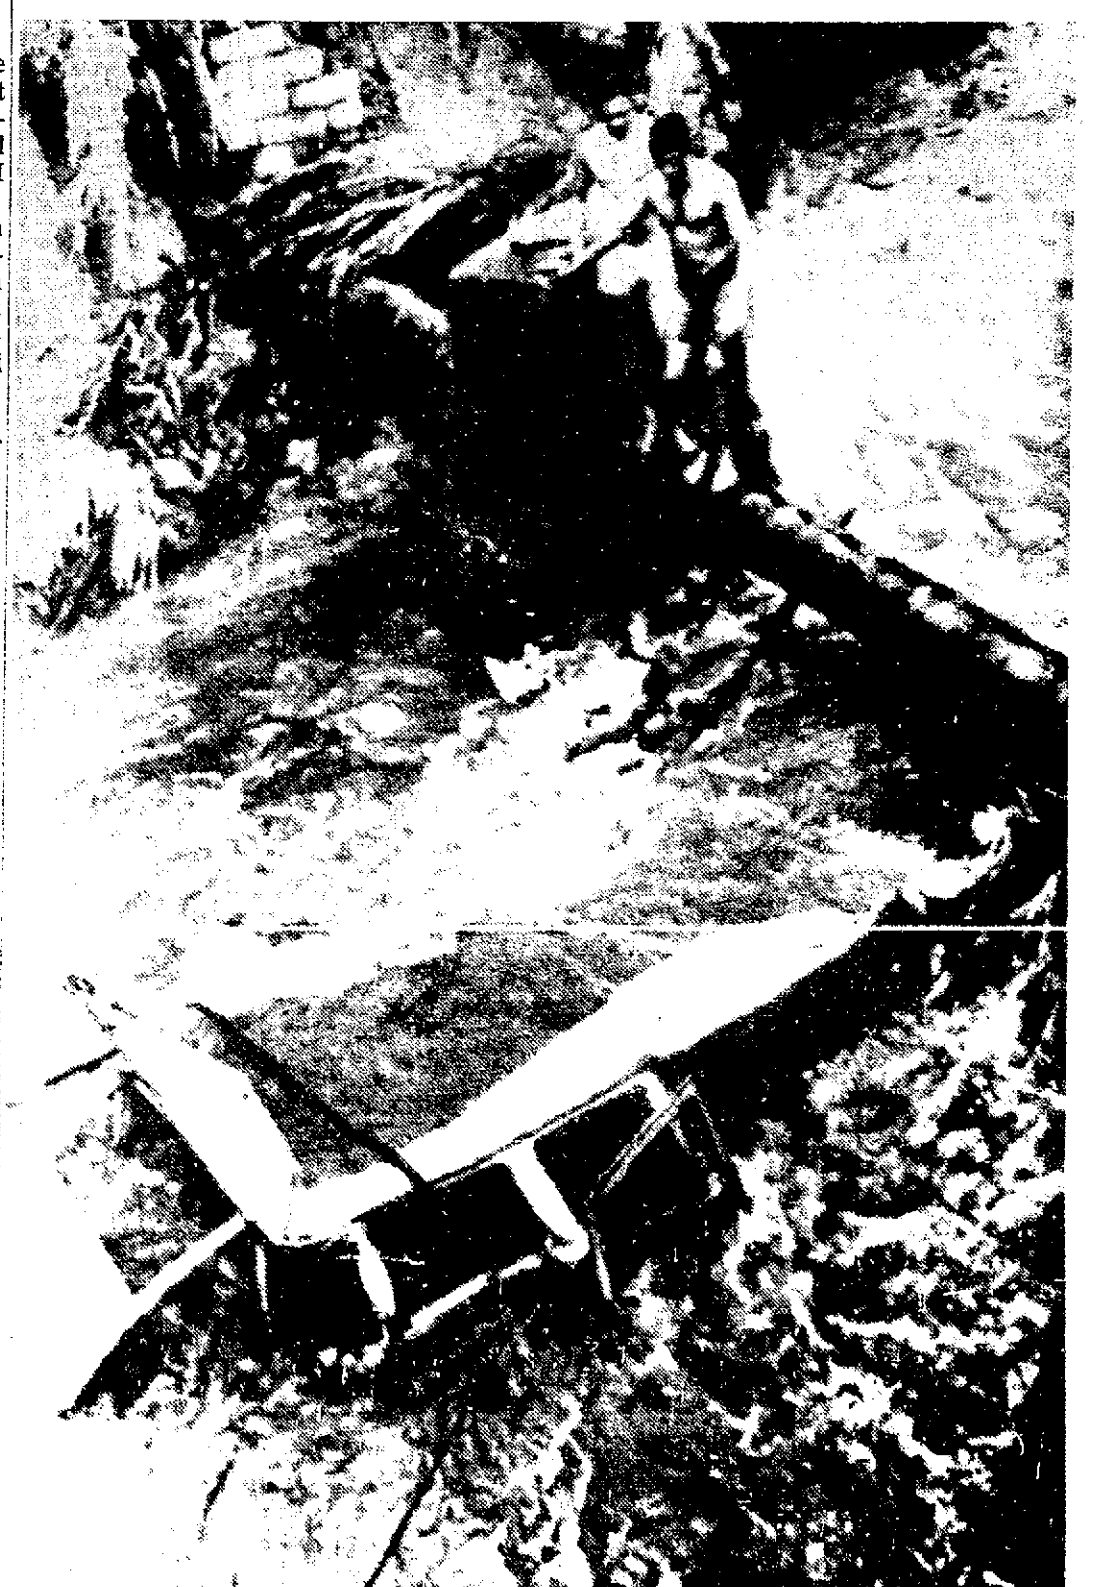

"While our 1970 rural housing loan effort increased 56 per cent over 1969, in 1971 we will have increased these loans another 88 per cent, to an annual amount of over $1.4 billion," he added.

2 Million Off for Day

British Engineers Strike

LONDON (AP) — More than 2 million engineering workers paralyzed wide sections of British industry today with a 24-hour walkout to protest the Conservative government's anti-strike bill.

The strike, called by the militant Amalgamated Engineering Union, left Britain without national newspapers, halted car production and hit shipyard work.

An estimated 3 million more workers lost a day's pay because their factories were idled by the engineers' stoppage. And the Trades Union Congress—the national labor federation—warned that the stoppage would anger the public and boomerang on the unions.

The strike call was defied by thousands of engineering workers at the stricken Rolls-Royce factory in Derby which is already threatened with big layoffs because of the company's financial troubles. The men voted to stay on the job today.

The government's industrial relations bill is now in the final stages of approval by the House of Commons and should be law before the summer. The legislation bans closed shops, provides for cooling-off periods and secret strike ballots, and makes collective bargaining contracts legally enforceable in the courts.

Meanwhile, Britain's postal strike neared the end of its sixth week with prospects of a settlement dimmed over the weekend. The Post Office refused again to budge from its offer of a 9 per cent pay hike, and Tom Jackson, general secretary of the Postal Workers' Union, warned the strike "could last for weeks." The union is demanding a 13 per cent pay hike.

Volpe Testifies

'Too Late to Stop SST'

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing supersonic transport opponents of "at times almost hysterical sloganeering," Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said today America is too close to proving the plane with actual test flights to kill it now.

The best way to answer charges that SSTs will blot out the sun, cause skin cancer, shatter eardrums, melt icecaps and disturb animal life is the current program to build and test fly two SST prototypes, Volpe told Congress.

Ten years and $1.1 billion have been invested in that program, Volpe said, and the test flights are scheduled for 1973.

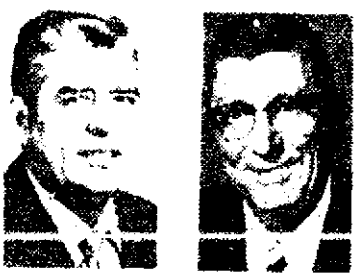

"We have gone too far, invested too much and are too near our goal to let this all go down the drain with no tangible results," Volpe said.

Volpe's case before the House appropriations subcommittee for a full $290 million to keep the SST prototype program on schedule launched a full week of

Schwenn Retires as Foundry President

WAUPACA — Clifford W. Schwenn, who has been in the foundry business for 50 years, has announced that he will step down as president and general manager of Waupaca Foundry, Inc.

He will continue as chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Succeeding Schwenn as president and general manager will be Donald G. Brunner, vice president of the foundry since it was acquired by Schwenn in 1955.

Since September, 1968, Waupaca Foundry has been a wholly-owned, independently operating subsidiary of The Budd Co., Detroit, Mich., one of the nation's largest independent suppliers to the automotive industry.

Schwenn got his first job in the foundry business at age 15 as a laborer with H. P. Deuschler Co. in Hamilton, Ohio, where he was born in 1905. He continued to work there summers and during vacations while going through high school and college. He graduated from Ohio State University in 1927 with a degree in metallurgical engineering.

Over the next 12 years, Schwenn served as foundry superintendent for the Muller Co. in Decatur, Ill., and Caterpillar Tractor, Peoria, Ill., and then joined Brillion Iron Works, Brillion, where he rose to vice president and director of manufacturing.

Bank Firm Shows Gains

Associated Reports Deposit Growth of Three Members

Associated Bank Services, Inc., Green Bay-based bank holding company, has reported that its member banks experienced increased consolidated deposit growth and above average loan demand in 1970 while consolidated income before and after securities transactions declined.

The member banks include the First National Bank of Neenah.

Consolidated deposits increased to $209,379,266 in 1970 from $186,916,433 in 1969. Time deposits acquired about 99 per cent of the outstanding shares of Kellogg-Citizens National Bank of Green Bay, Manitowish Savings Bank and First National of Neenah in exchange for shares of its common stock. These acquisitions have been reflected on a pooling-of-interests basis in the financial statements.

Loan volume increased to $10,522,560 to a high of $136,498,136. Based on preliminary and incomplete audited figures, 1970 income before securities transactions amounted to $1,421,858, or 60 cents per share, compared with $1,643,584, or $1.01, for 1969, a 12 per cent decline. Consolidated net income after securities transactions totaled $1,631,838, or 99 cents, compared with $1,715,614, or $1.07, in 1969, a 5 per cent decline.

This decline resulted from increased operating costs in providing additional financial services by member banks to their customers, some of a non-recurring nature; administrative start-up cost for the new bank holding company; higher interest paid on deposits obtained to provide lendable funds which totaled $6,110,513, an increase of $1,226,518 and declining loan and short term interest rates in the last half of 1970.

Associated Bank Services, Inc. became a bank holding company last May 1 when it acquired about 99 per cent of the outstanding shares of Kellogg-Citizens National Bank of Green Bay, Manitowish Savings Bank and First National of Neenah in exchange for shares of its common stock. These acquisitions have been reflected on a pooling-of-interests basis in the financial statements.

NEW LONDON — Residents of this city will be viewing many changes during 1971, and footing a large bill to cover the required changes.

The total bill for the programs will be in the neighborhood of $1,255,000. This will be spent in addition to the amount spent for the services presently provided by the city.

Among the capital improvements will be the urbanization of the 45-54 intersection at a cost of $450,000, resurfacing and sidewalks and curb and gutter on Main Street (at intersection of N. Water and Pearl streets) at $173,000, sanitary sewer on N. Water Street and other smaller sanitary sewer projects at $70,000, completion of the southside storm sewer separation for $175,000, and the erection of the Safety Building and Annex at $597,000.

NEW LONDON — The three victims of a car-truck collision on Mill Street a few hundred feet from Community Hospital are still hospitalized but in improved condition after Friday's accident.

Francis Waushesock, 327 E. Wolf River Ave., New London, sustained a fractured leg below the knee, lacerations to the right eye, forehead, and left leg. Mary Waushesock, a passenger in the auto, has a compound fracture to the ankle, broken kneecap, fractured left leg, lacerations to the left hand and lower lip. A third passenger in the Waushesock auto, Lucille Guyette, has a severe laceration to the right forehead, and a cerebral concussion.

The accident occurred at 6:35 a.m. Friday when the Waushesock auto and a truck driven by Wilbur A. Heyden, 2476 N. 40th St., Milwaukee, struck head-on.

The entire front end of the Waushesock auto was demolished, and the truck was extensively damaged. Roads were ice-covered at the time of the accident, and authorities are having difficulty determining exactly what happened, since a point of impact cannot be established.

Hilbert Scouts Conduct Mock Emergencies

HILBERT — Cadette Girl Scouts in Troop 107 conducted two "emergency preparedness" challenges here Saturday, with the volunteer fire department cooperating with the girls in carrying out one of them.

In a mock emergency situation in which there was supposed to be a serious fire in the business district, five Cadettes used the Alfred Fochs home as a rescue and relief center where they were in charge of administering first aid, and providing food and shelter to anyone who came.

The girls "treated" a fireman with face burns, another with a severe cut on his foot and one with a head cut. Sandwiches and coffee was prepared and served by the Scouts.

In the other situation at the home of Mrs. Rita Burns, the Cadette leader, the Scouts had to prepare a party fare for eight pre-school age children including baking a cake, and entertaining them, when Mrs. Burns supposedly became ill and had to spend the afternoon in bed.

The events were the climax of a wide range of preparation. Cadettes are required to meet four challenges successfully, as well as earning six badges over a three year period to reach first class rank.

Girls participating at the Fochs home were Pam Parsons, Kim Meyers, Delores Cornwell and Mary Price. At the Burns home Cindy Sweeney, Kathy Novak, JoAnne Pethan and Marilyn Pitzen took part.

Executive Hopefuls Face Voters

The list of candidates will be announced his candidacy for the executive job last June. He attended Marquette University. Henry J. Police Warn of Check Forger Appleton police are asking merchants and citizens to help locate a young man who has cashed $2,400 worth of checks that were stolen last month from a St. Norbert College student who lives in Appleton. The forger apparently is using false identification, police note.

Brad Vincent, 256 River Drive, reported the theft of his checks and stereo equipment to De Pere police Jan. 12. The items had been in his dormitory room.

De Pere police still are investigating the rash of dormitory burglaries which occurred over the holiday recess. Burglars took approximately $5,000 in cash and merchandise, police said.

Vincent closed his account with the First National Bank of Appleton when he realized the checks numbered from 600 through 699, were gone. At least $2,400 worth of the bogus notes, forgeries, have come back to the bank for payment but are worthless. They are the Scene Americana style, police said.

Five checks are known to have been passed in Appleton One, for $832, was issued last Friday at a northside firm for purchase of stereo equipment.

Detectives said the culprit has been issuing the checks in Appleton Oshkosh and Green Bay mostly at stereo equipment shops and clothing stores. A clerk at the northside firm described the one who wrote the check as between 19 and 21, and about 5 feet 10 inches tall.

There's Help for Waupaca's Poor

WAUPACA — Where are the "poor" people?

This is a question every person could ask himself when government leaders talk about welfare and medical programs, guaranteed annual income, unemployment and increased social security.

If you live in Waupaca County, you can find the "poor" people in your own block or "down the road just a piece."

One out of 30 of this county's residents depend upon surplus commodities to stretch a shrinking or non-existent income, according to the Waupaca County Department of Social Services.

At present, there are 435 families, averaging three persons per family, eating surplus commodities, according to Robert Payette, director of Social Services.

A person who has less than $135 per month income can pick up surplus commodities. Eligibility is filed with the Department of Social Services. If there are two in the family and the income is less than $185, they are eligible. For each additional person in the household, add $30 to the monthly income to determine eligibility.

The records also show that there are 905 persons in the county who are on public assistance, through the Old Age Assistance, Disabled Aid, Aid to Families of Dependent Children and Blind Aid programs.

All of the "poor people" in this world are not in the ghetto or in urban and rural poor areas of the country," Payette pointed out.

'Eligibility for Help

"There are a number who still live in their own homes. Trying to stretch their small pensions, social security or savings does enable them to properly provide for themselves," he added. "Their eligibility for help is based on a combined allowance formula with a rent limit of $85 per month or an allowance for $275 and persons $306-10 $374 and 12 persons $390

Spring Election Races Develop In Town of Lind

WAUPACA — Two races developed for the spring election Saturday when the Town of Lind held its biennial caucus.

Edwin Peterson challenges incumbent Daniel Hartfield for the office of assessor, and Roger Bartel is running for the No. 2 constable, against incumbent Larry Pagel.

Town Board chairman Marvin Schoenick reported following Saturday's caucus, "We were disappointed because only 20 town people showed up and only the officers who have served during the past years were willing to have their names on the ballot."

The ballot for the Town of Lind will call for another endorsement by the electors of Town Chairman Marvin Schoenick; Side Supervisors Clarence Loss and William Winkler; Clerk Edward Stillman and Treasurer Stuart Pope.

Eugene Bartel is the only candidate for No. 1 constable.

Competition Set For Election to Fremont Offices

FREMONT — There will be competition for all village offices in the spring election, as two candidates were nominated for each position at the village caucus Thursday night.

Harold Abraham, incumbent president who was appointed to the office after the resignation of Thomas Pitt, will face Herbert Reckmann Jr. for the post.

Six persons were nominated for the three trustee posts now held by Walter Warnke, Dr. Walter Neuschaefer and Melvin Maierhafer. Warnke and Maierhafer will seek re-election. Other candidates are Edwin Allie, Robert Jones, Oakley Davidson and Milton Steinke.

Nominated for both the clerk and treasurer posts are incumbent Ronald Abbott and Mrs. Colleen Stuebbs.

Evan Redemann served as chairman of the caucus with Philip Lewin as clerk. The 37 residents attending nominated several persons for each post and elimination balloting was necessary to determine just two candidates for each office.

The office of assessor is not elective. Roger Schmoldt previously was appointed by the Village Council and will assume the post on April 1.

Visitors to High Cliff In '70 Set New Record

BY HAZEL THIEL

Post-Crescent Correspondent
SHERWOOD — High Cliff State Park had a record number of 667,515 visitors in 1970. The figure is 98,647 more than the previous year. During the 14-year period since the park opened there have been 4,826,962 visitors.

A total of 198,718 cars were recorded in the park last year and there were 17,799 campers. According to a report prepared by Clyde T. Smith, Assistant District Director of the Bureau of Parks and Recreation, the 54 unit campground at High Cliff was filled to capacity every weekend between Memorial Day and Labor Day in 1970, and camper fees amounted to $14,479.

Daily and annual entry fees brought a total of $20,636 in revenue. This is slightly less than for the previous year, due mainly to an extremely poor April fishing season on Lake Winnebago.

Seventy-three acres of land were acquired by the state park last year, costing $110,300. The state now owns 934.21 acres. An option has been obtained for the last remaining lot of the Old Park of High Cliff.

Negotiations are in progress for several other parcels within the park boundary, and it is the Park Bureau's plan to complete these purchases during this year.

Improvements during 1970 included installation of a sanitary sewer system serving all the facilities in the lower park area. This will be functioning this spring. All sewage will be pumped into an approved lagooning system, located in the upper level of the park.

A new service and maintenance building was begun late in 1970, and is to be completed by July.

The construction of a modern flush toilet building located in the Red Bird picnic area also was completed last year, and seven miles of snowmobile trails were laid out and maintained for winter use. More than 500 snowmobilers are using the trails each week.

Other improvements included plans and specifications for the construction of a 1,250 foot breakwater and pier for protection of the boat marina channel. A timetable for construction has been worked out.

A new north entrance road to the park was completed.

Several old buildings, including The Cliffs Tavern, two residences and a large barn, were razed in the lower park area. The overhead powerlines in the lower picnic area were removed, and underground electric power lines were installed. A solid waste disposal service was contracted for with a local operator, solving the park's waste problems.

Equipment purchased last year included a four wheel drive truck with snowplow attachment; one 24 h.p. snowmobile and a snowmobile trail leveler.

High Cliff Forest Park Association presented a 15-p.h. tractor with a 60 inch rotary mower to the park, enabling the maintenance staff to reduce mowing time by about one half.

In 1970 about 50 citations were issued by the State Park Police Officers. The offenses included disorderly conduct, speeding, and entering the park after closing hours.

Plans for this year include completion of the marina channel and breakwater construction project; construction of park office and visitor center and the sewer and water lines to serve these buildings; purchase of one remaining parcel of land in the lower park area; reconstruction of the dam which forms the small ponds located on recently acquired lands in the lower area; and razing of four sets of farm buildings and residences not in use within the park.

Those placed on the ballot but who will not face opposition include incumbent supervisors Ole Thompson and Orin Anderson; Town Clerk Mrs. R. F. Ewald; Assessor Harold Jensen; and Dale Trunrud, candidate for the No. 1 constable post.

The Washington Birthday Plot

There are two widely divergent points of view concerning the alleged George Washington's Birthday Plot, although probably the majority of Americans do not subscribe to either one. On the one side are those who believe that there was an extensive conspiracy to blow up heating pipes in the Congressional tunnels and to kidnap Presidential aide Henry Kissinger to force an end to the American participation in the war. On the other hand are those who believe that the indictment of thirteen men and women on charges of conspiracy is a government effort to harass dissenters and to cut off dissent against government policies.

There is no doubt but that some of those accused are vehement dissenters. The Reverend Daniel Berrigan and his brother, the Reverend Philip Berrigan, called the press and television to witness their spreading home-made napalm over draft records in Catonsville, Maryland, almost three years ago. Convicted of destroying government property, they were sentenced to prison but both tried to escape and Father Daniel managed to elude the F. B. I. for more than four months, turning up repeatedly at church services and other meetings, much to the discomfiture of the F. B. I.

The others currently on trial for conspiracy include four more Roman Catholic priests, two former priests, and four nuns.

Clearly if there were such a plot, the group should be convicted and sentenced. Despite our disagreement with the policies in Vietnam in particular and disappointment in the current Administration's lack of understanding of the major problems that face

Americans, we cannot conceive that we have yet reached the point when terrorism must be used as a weapon to change policies. Kidnapping is not just a crime against property but against a person. And mass destruction of facilities, even if no one is hurt, and there is no guarantee of that as the explosion at the math building at the University of Wisconsin demonstrated, is not a valid weapon to use in a democracy.

It is well known that some of the radicals have come to believe that the ordinary channels for change have been closed in this country and that force must be used in the same way as it would be in a dictatorship. It did take a long time — and the fall elections — for President Nixon to become aware of the dissension in the country, the frustration over the war, the concern about poverty and desegregation and the antagonism to his economic policies. But 1972 is not far away and the President is essentially a political creature.

It is disturbing to see pictures of a priest not only wearing manacles but leg irons and waist chains, denied the right to say Mass and spending considerable time in solitary confinement. Whatever the outcome of the current trial, this smacks of harassment. There is also the matter of some doubt as to why the charges were brought. Last November F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover named the Berrigans as leaders of the plot before a Congressional committee. Supporters of the Berrigans claim that the charges were brought because of the put up or shut up attitude of a lot of people but it seems doubtful that the government would have risked the humiliation of defeat without some pretty good evidence.

Flexible Educational Structures

One of the encouraging aspects of this time of considerable change in the world of education is the trend away from the traditional format of a set number of years for elementary, secondary and higher education.

It has come in a number of ways. There are wide variations of the old 8-4-4 scheme. There are levels according to ability and subject matter within elementary grading systems. There are no-grade systems. University students often are encouraged to take off for a semester or a year to work on subject related projects or even in completely different fields. There are years at foreign institutions, much more emphasis upon the particular academic needs of the individual student, fewer required courses. There are many more "adults" enrolling after their children are grown.

One experimental institution is Simon's Rock College in Massachusetts. Its particular difference is that it accepts as freshmen students who ordinarily would be starting their junior year in high school.

So far Simon's Rock has had problems of being accepted by what the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, calls the "bureaucracy" of institutional higher education. The college cannot award the bachelor's degree and students must go two more years to a more traditional college for that. However, some graduates are entering the graduate field at the same time. The administration and faculty insist that the courses are on the college level and that the institution is not a two years of high school and the first two years of college place.

The reason for the experiment, according to Mrs. Hall, is that many high school students are ready for it. They often spend their last two years in high school just preparing for college, she says. "Physiologically, the age of puberty comes earlier. Thanks to medicine and nutrition, things have happened to make kids feel stronger. They also know more. They're the first generation raised by the mass media. It's a generation that thinks it knows a lot because it has a lot of information from the television set. . . . However, a lot of information doesn't make for wisdom or maturity." But Mrs. Hall believes that the college environment, rather than that of the more regulated high school or prep school, can "hasten social and emotional maturation by beginning the apprenticeship to life earlier."

There are some regulations on freshmen such as no automobiles or overnight check-outs during the week. But students make up the majority of the central body of campus government. Dormitories are coeducational with men in one wing and women in another. The only course requirement is one of 30 English courses during the freshman year. But classes are small, there is a great deal of contact between students and faculty, the emphasis is upon individual learning and development.

The vast changes in the educational picture since the end of World War II are providing wider opportunities for more Americans of all ages. Interestingly enough one of the entrance requirements at Simon's Rock is a paper on "the wise restraints that make men free."

Avenue to Have New Block

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for March 11, 1871.

As is known to our citizens, Messrs. J. Smith, Dr. J. Sutherland and John Nolan have united in arrangements for the building of a splendid new brick block of four stores on the Avenue, between David Smith's Bank Block and Willy & Greene's present furniture store, on lots owned by these prospective builders.

We regret that Messrs. Bordiet & Ward, and Fisher and Strathairn do not also build in the same connection and make a continuous block from the Bank building to the Oneida Street corner.

Plans have been drawn by Mr. William Waters, of Oshkosh, and have been adopted. The stores are designed to be 100 feet deep by some 21 in width, with the exception of Nolan's, whose brick warehouse in the rear will decrease the length of his store.

There are to be three stories and a basement — the latter 50 feet long with cellars in the rear.

The store windows are to be of plate glass — in three pieces, 2x7 feet with an upper light of 3 x 4 feet, with a front to correspond — iron fluted pillars and metallic sash.

The upper windows are to be of two lights of plate glass — all windows to be arched, also with heavy mouldings.

The entrance to upper floors is to be from the sidewalk in the center of the block. The upper floors are to be occupied by offices. Applications already have been made for these stores, which when finished will be the handsomest this side of Milwaukee.

The stores are to be heated by furnaces in basements.

Opportunities will be given contractors to put in bids for this work, including the furnishing of the cut stone, and it may include in the same connection, Messrs. Galpin and Mory's Block of stores, of which we will endeavor to say something in our next.

National Springtime

Washington Hopes for Signs Of Greening in U.S. Economy

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON

Washington enjoyed a few premature spring days last week, and customers thronged into suburban shopping centers.

Others, myself included, spent some time belatedly stripping away last autumn's leaves from what should soon be a garden. As an ex-city boy hitherto little exposed to genuine greenery, I am intrigued by — and every few days inspect — the different plant shoots that have begun to poke their way through the soil. We have snowdrops already, and promise of crocus, scilla, daffodils and hyacinth. Washington will have another snow, but spring is indubitably on its way.

President Nixon and his economic advisers are not gardeners. Mr. Nixon is not the old pants, sweater and fingers-in-earth type, and anyway, he hardly has the time. Yet he too is watching for signs of springtime, for an end to winter's recession and for the greening of the American consumer and economy.

The President has targeted a $1,065 trillion Gross National Product for 1971, which requires an ambitious 9 per cent increase over last year. Such a 1971 upsurge, of course, is crucial to Mr. Nixon's hope with these circumstances was the public's lack of confidence in the stability and future of U.S. society.

Investor Turnaround Lags

The man in the street has not yet regained full confidence. Through January, small investors remained net sellers rather than buyers of stock, and savings banks reported a heavy inflow for the month. Historically, the turnaround in small investor and consumer attitudes lags about six months behind the turnaround in the stock market, which began last May-June.

Middle and upper-income Americans hold the key to recovery. The top ten million families have 41 per cent of U.S. income and a higher percentage of U. S. savings. Add recent savings to the new paper wealth accumulated by corporate and individual investors, and the spendable money overhanging the economy — able to gun it back to expansion — is enormous.

Corporate America, with the best analysts and information, is taking the lead. Two recent surveys found that capital outlays by corporations will rise 10-11 per cent this year over 1970 figures. Consumer spending plans, still uncertain, should follow in this wake.

Of course, the crisis in national confidence goes beyond economics. But as U.S. troops shoot their way back out of Vietnam, collegians put down rocks for textbooks, the new Supreme Court begins returning criminal procedures to the states, and family movies start to reappear on theatre marquees, it is hard not to think that the long winter of the Sixties is ending.

Here along the Potomac, though, the winter warriors of the Democratic party — who set all the troubles in motion during the dark days of the last decade — keep invoking the specter of a worsening economy, urban crisis and World War Three. When spring comes, they may drown in the thaw.

Phillips

that (election-year) 1972 will be the "very good year" he has promised the American people.

Here in Washington, where politicians of all stripes are scanning them anxiously, the first signs of economic springtime are surfacing along with the snowdrops and crocus.

January's statistics were good. Personal income rose a solid $8 billion. At the same time, the inflation index climbed only 0.1 per cent in January, the smallest increase in four years. Industrial output rose only 0.7 per cent last month, but seasonally-adjusted unemployment fell from 6.2 per cent to 6 per cent, the first decline in seven months. (Unemployment also dipped in Canada, where trends tend to mirror our own.)

In the last half year, interest rates have dropped faster than at any time since World War Two. And the stock market has soared. From the end of June, 1970 to January 31, 1971, stocks added a paper value of $177 billion!

The recession of 1970 combined unusual crosscurrents. Unlike the pattern of other U. S. recessions, last year saw unemployment and inflation rise together. Even as this was taking place, the still-wealthy American people put away an unprecedented amount of money in savings. Interwoven

It'll be nice when the filibuster filibuster is over so we can listen to the new one on the SST.

It turns out our FX system overseas is totally corrupt. That shows we've learned something from our Saigon allies.

Wisconsin Report
State Bureaucracy
Resents Intrusion
Of Federal Bureaus

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — President Nixon's "new American revolution" as proclaimed in his proposal to revitalize state and local governments to return power to the people has had a mixed reception. Popular enthusiasm has been mutated, to put it mildly. Perhaps the most positive response has been to the bait of federal revenue sharing with lesser governments, which appears at the moment to face dangerously formidable obstacles in the congress.

But the President may find allies for his declared objective in unexpected places and notably among principal officers of the Wisconsin state government and probably like-minded administrative heads of progressive state governments elsewhere.

There is more candid grumbling among principal state officers about the heavy hand of federal "bureaucracy" than at any time in this reporter's memory. There is also more evidence that authority of the states is being seriously undermined by expanding powers of the hugely growing agencies in distant Washington.

Resentment of Power Use of the epithet "bureaucrats" by men of the state establishment may have an ironic sound. But resentment and frustration about the obviously growing power aspirations of federal officialdom are nevertheless earnest.

At the University of Wisconsin a major issue and the source of heavy publicity lately is the spectre of a cut-off of millions of federal dollars because of "discrimination" against women in recruitment and classification of faculty.

Skeptics may discount the furore as an invention of the "women's lib" movement. But the bureaucracy (state edition) is alert and sensitive to the possibility, however remote, that huge handouts of federal money may be in jeopardy because of a present federal inquiry. Unspoken is the idea that the university will be governed by Washington on the fundamental issue of faculty.

The state highway administration periodically laments about abrupt decisions in Washington to withhold highway funds for one reason or another, with far-reaching repercussions in the continuity of its work.

Only Nominal Authority

The Department of Health and Social Services and county agencies are the nominal authorities in public assistance. But the emphasis must be on "nominal." To an increasing degree they are subjects of Washington administrators.

Even the Department of Natural Resources, than which there is no agency with a more deliberate provincial orientation, looks increasingly to Washington for money and, inevitably, bends to its wishes about what is done and how.

The Department of Local Affairs and Development, created with enthusiastic hurrahs only a few years ago, is basically a conveyor belt for federal dollars and the transmitter of federal government-imposed conditions.

An expression about the pervading power and control of national government has most recently come from Donald Wilkinson of the Department of Agriculture. Half a dozen years ago this state made a great effort to establish a meat and poultry inspection program — under threat of federal preemption.

Takes Over Inspection

Now Wilkinson has asked his directing board whether the strenuous and costly state service is necessary or justified. The federal inspection service, involved with production that moves in interstate commerce, covers about 90 per cent of all the Wisconsin meat products sent to market. The state service accounts for about 10 per cent. But it costs the deficit-ridden state treasury about $700,000 a year, which could be saved if the entire meat inspection responsibility is taken over by Washington. Is the program worth it, he asked.

It is a good question. The chances are that such frustrations afflict other agency heads in a time of racing multiplication of the "feds" and their powers.

Mrs. Saif Distorted Facts About Israel

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

It was most deplorable that under the pretense of academic scholarship Mrs. Laila Abou Saif of Lawrence University made an unbridled bias presentation distorting simple and basic facts. I am referring to a report in the February 19 issue of The Post-Crescent covering a meeting of the Great Decisions group.

Mrs. Saif asserts: "It is ironic that a country the size of Israel should dictate its terms to a country the size of the U.S." Well, does the assistant professor really believe that the right of a nation to survival or self-determination depends on its size? Is right conditioned by might? I believe that such a concept is utterly strange to the most sacred principles the United States stands for.

Mrs. Saif speaks about "A war between Arabs and Jews that followed the partition of Palestine in 1948." Strangely enough, the speaker forgot to mention the fact that it was the Arab nations who started that war in open defiance of the United Nations resolution and with the declared purpose to "push the Jews into the sea."

Mrs. Abou Saif further states that "Israel was to be blamed for both the 1956 Suez crisis and the 1967 six-day war."

Unfortunately the report does not state on which facts did Mrs. Saif base her assumption, if any. Is it because Egypt amassed on the borders of Israel 100,000 soldiers ready to invade the country and destroy it that Israel is to be blamed? Should the blame be put on Israel because Nasser unilaterally closed down the Straits of Tiran for Israeli shipping, or perhaps because he hastily expelled the United Nations Peace Keeping Force from the Egyptian-Israeli frontiers? All the above provocative actions were carried out by Egypt in less than two weeks coupled with wild orgies in the streets of Cairo and Alexandria calling for a war of annihilation. Israel's glorious act of salvation in six days is an outstanding example of the unified will of a people to live and its spiritual fortitude.

Mrs. Abou Saif asserts that "Israel intends neither to withdraw from Suez and the Sinai desert nor does Israel have any intentions of compensating the refugees." Both assertions are a clear distortion of facts that may be verified by public record. Israel has made it very clear time and again that she will withdraw from occupied territories and that she will cooperate and take the lead in the resettlement of the Arab refugees if only the Arabs would agree to cease belligerence and talk peace. But this is exactly what the Arabs have so far refused to do.

And, finally, Mrs. Abou Saif stated that "Each conflict between Arabs and Israelis has resulted in additional territorial acquisitions by Israel." This is true and a matter of public record too. It is only to be hoped that this practical consideration will avert the Arabs from further war ventures and will eventually open their eyes to realize that it is the path to peace that will benefit them while continuous warfare will only serve the interests of the Russians who are eager to keep tensions high.

Rail Workers Free to Strike, Remain on Job

Negotiations for 190,000 Members of Union Continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Free to strike at any time, some 190,000 members of the United Transportation Union kept working today as union officials continued contract negotiations with the nation's railroads.

Emergency legislation passed by Congress three months ago to halt a brief nationwide strike ran out at midnight, Sunday. But the union, as predicted by labor officials, continued voluntary talks with the National Railway Labor Conference.

Work rules, governing who handles individual jobs, and how they are carried out, were the last major stumbling block, said Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery. Usery and George Ives, a member of the National Mediation and Conciliation Service, have been guiding the talks through final stages.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said Sunday he felt the negotiations would continue past the possible walkout time. "There will be no nationwide railroad strike tonight," he said.

December Strike
The UTU is the last holdout of four rail unions that struck briefly in early December. The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union reached settlements in February covering 243,000 railroad workers.

The agreements provided wage increases averaging 44 per cent over 42 months.

Congress' emergency laws banning the strike provided for President Nixon to suggest a solution if agreement wasn't reached by today. The President's report Feb. 18 asked for partial strikes that would not create a major emergency, or imposition of the recommendations made by federal mediators; that a 32 per cent wage hike be made, provided work rules changes management wanted also were effected.

The unions vigorously opposed changes in work rules, saying thousands of workers would lose their jobs. Management said they were necessary for efficiency.

Carriers faced even more labor difficulty as March began.

The Brotherhood of Signalmen has said it will strike March 5, and the American Train Dispatchers Union has voted a strike, but set no date. However, the Railway Labor Act, exhausted before last December's strike, remains in effect for the signalmen and dispatchers, so President Nixon can obtain a 60-day cooling off period should agreements not be reached.

Prices Put At Before Riot Spot in Poland

WARSAW (AP) —The Polish government today rolled back the December rise in food prices that led to bloody street fighting, 45 deaths and the biggest government shakeup in more than a decade.

Beef dropped back to $1 a pound, nearly a fourth of a day's wage for the average worker but 30 cents cheaper than it has been. Officials feared such a buying rush that the supply would give out.

Cheese came down 25 per cent, flour 16 per cent, jam 36.8 per cent, and the prices of many other foods and clothing items dropped similarly.

Nearly 66 per cent of the home market was affected by the December price changes. They did include some reductions on such durable goods as television sets, refrigerators and washing machines, and prices on these items were not increased.

Schoolchildren were in for a bumper treat. Candy had gone up an average of 14.2 per cent. Today it was that much less.

Shopkeepers worked all day Sunday repricing their stocks. "I wish I had not thrown away the old price tags," said one with a smile.

The switchback was tantamount to borsing the nation's purchasing power by $500 million, said Trybuna Ludu, the Communist party newspaper.

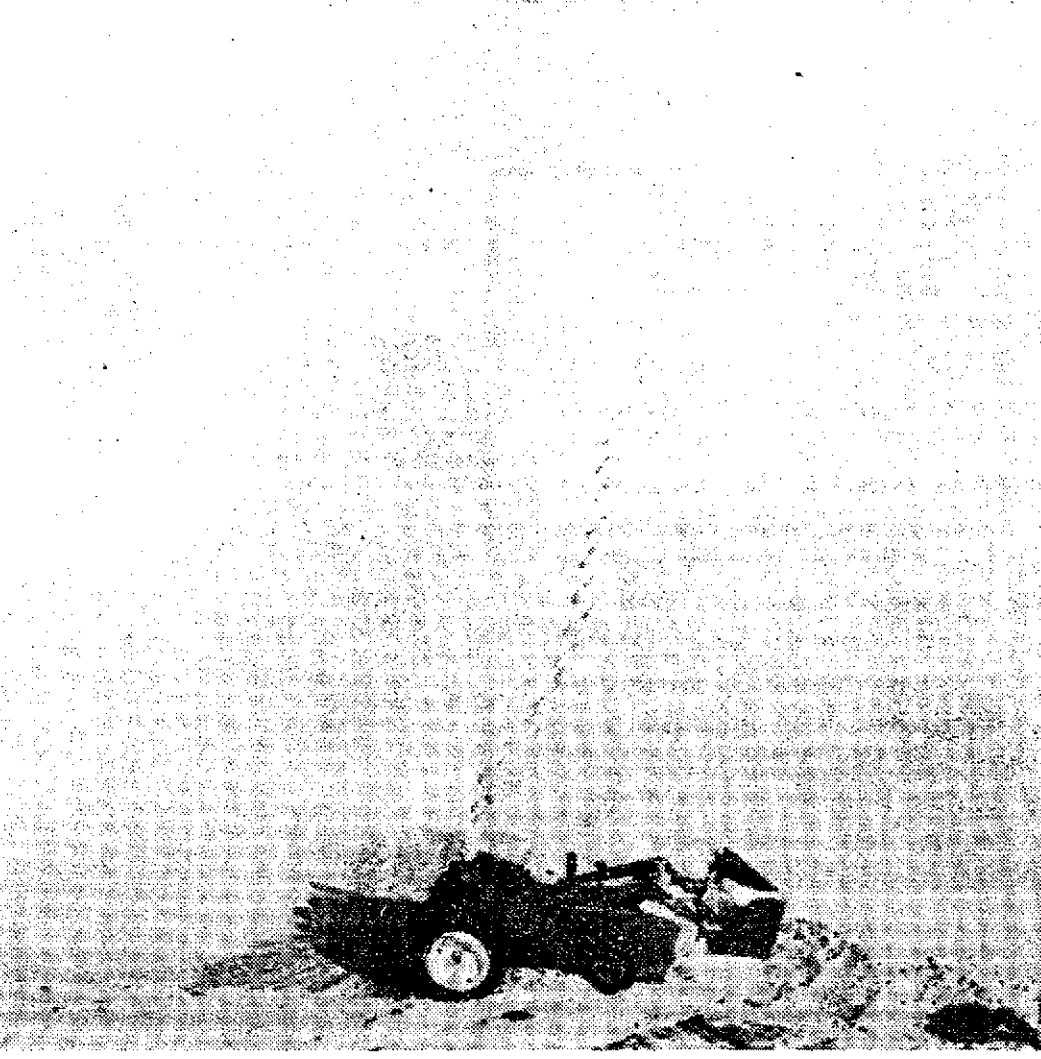

Stevenson, Mrs. Smith Get Jewish Award

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sens. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., and Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, have received the Herbert H. Lehman Ethics Award of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Accepting the award at a dinner Sunday night, Stevenson said that in the Middle East "the terms for peace must require Arab recognition of the sovereignty and territorial sanctity of agreed boundaries for the State of Israel."

Smoking Ad Ban to Have Little Effect, Tobacco Industry Feels

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers say they're doing all right despite antismoking campaigns and a government ban on television and radio advertising.

In 1970 the number of cigarettes produced in the United States increased 17.4 billion to 575 billion.

Even Liggett & Myers, Inc., which has reported a slight decline in cigarette sales for several years, posted an increase in operating income from cigarettes last year.

John Palmer of Washington, president of Tobacco Associates, a flue-cured tobacco trade organization, noted that last year's increase in production was a reversal of the recent trend. For instance, he said, in 1969 fewer cigarettes were produced than in 1968.

Also, the figure for cigarette exports jumped last year from 25 billion to 29 billion.

Most cigarette manufacturers do not release exact sales figures, but surveys by Marketing Communications, Forbes and Barron's indicate gains in cigarette sales last year of from one to three per cent.

The surveys said profits increased even more because of higher prices.

Palmer predicted the federal ban on television and radio cigarette advertising, which went into effect the first of this year, would have little influence on cigarette consumption.

He said the companies have switched to other forms of advertising, including newspapers, magazines and billboards.

"It's too early to tell," Palmer said, "but we don't think there will be any great effect."

The American Cancer Society, which along with the U.S. Public Health Service has led the fight against cigarette smoking, says its surveys show nearly two-thirds of the adult population in the United States are nonsmokers. The figure 10 years ago was 50 per cent.

But meanwhile, the population of the United States has increased from about 180 million to more than 205 million.

The society also says there has been an increase in the number of teen-agers who smoke.

The Cancer Society, however, is encouraged over the smaller amount of tar and nicotine in cigarettes, which it says has been cut drastically over the last 15 years.

Judge Disputes Claim Of Nominee for SEC

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says he doesn't believe he handled a court case involving William J. Casey, President Nixon's nominee for chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, the way Casey remembers it.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who released an exchange of letters with Judge J. Braxton Craven Jr. of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Sunday, said the judge's account of the case shows serious discrepancies in Casey's testimony to the Senate Banking Committee.

Proxmire has succeeded in delaying a favorable committee report on Casey's nomination pending further study. The committee approved the nomination after the first hearing but has not reported to the Senate and can reverse its action if it so chooses.

Plagiarism Suit
The case in question involved a 1962 out-of-court settlement made after Henry Field of Indianapolis sued Casey and the publishing firm of Prentice Hall for plagiarism. The suit charged the firm and Casey, who then was an editor with Prentice Hall, with using material from a Field manuscript which had been rejected.

The jury ruled against Casey and the publisher but Casey, in his testimony before the Senate committee, said "The judge who had presided over the case did a highly unusual thing: He called in the two attorneys and he said to them that the verdict was not supported by evidence in the case and that he would set it aside . . ."

Judge's Reply
Judge Craven replied in a letter to Proxmire, "I do not recall telling the two attorneys, or anyone else, after the trial that the verdict was not supported by the evidence, and I am as reasonably sure as one can be after nine years that I made no such statement."

"I did not indicate that I would set the verdict aside and order a new trial unless the parties got together and settled the case. In five years as a state trial judge and five years as a federal trial judge, I do not recall ever having done that."

Casey said Sunday night he did not want to dispute Craven's account. "I testified to my best recollection and to what my attorney had told me from his recollection," he said.

The Senate Banking Committee is to meet in closed session Tuesday, presumably to consider Proxmire's request for further hearings.

Soldier Killed by Londonderry Bomb

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier was burned to death early today when ambushers in the Roman Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry threw 16 fire bombs at his patrolling landrover.

In Belfast, a British army bullet in the stomach sent a 16-year-old to a hospital as troops exchanged shots with snipers of the Irish Republican Army, and explosions reverberated through the Catholic quarter. Isolated explosions were set off elsewhere in the British province.

An army spokesman said about 20 youths ambushed a three-man military police patrol in Londonderry.

Attacker Caught

The driver was thrown clear as the vehicle spun into a wall. The attackers stoned him, but Bogside residents dashed from their homes to drag the other two men from the back of the burning vehicle. One died before reaching a hospital; the other was not injured seriously.

The driver caught one attacker and handed him over to police, the Army said.

"It seems as though the attack was organized," the spokesman said. "Everything happened together. There were 10 petrol bombs in the air at their wounds."

Londonderry was calm before and after the ambush.

Until last month, the British force that came to Northern Ireland in August 1969 to put down Protestant-Catholic rioting had not lost a man. But today's victim was the third in a month and the third peacekeeper killed during a violent weekend. IRA machine-gun fire brought down six unarmed policemen Saturday morning, and two died from their wounds.

Arm Police

Their deaths prompted pressure on Prime Minister James Callaghan to arm the police. He called his police-army security committee into session Sunday, but the committee decided to leave them unarmed.

Since the traditional political and economic rivalry between Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and Catholic minority escalated into street fighting and worse in August 1969, 45 persons have been officially listed as killed, including the three soldiers and five policemen. Unofficial estimates put the dead at more than 50, about evenly divided between Catholics and Protestants.

The violence stemmed originally from a Roman Catholic campaign two years ago for an end to political and economic discrimination by the Protestant majority. But the outlawed IRA has turned the fighting into a crusade to end British rule of the six Protestant counties of Northern Ireland and unite them with the Catholic Irish Republic.

Scuba Diver Dies in Quarry

RACINE (AP)—A scuba diver died Sunday after being trapped under ice in an abandoned quarry, apparently having lost contact with a rope that was to have guided him back to a hole in the ice.

Authorities said the victim, Kenneth Gillet, 28, of Wheaton, Ill., evidently used up his supply of air before he could locate the safety line.

He was diving at Racine County's Quarry Park.

Stakes Go Higher In Indochina Poker

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The bullet-seared Indochina Bar and Grill was jammed when the dusty stranger walked up and ordered a straight whisky.

"You doing a big business," the stranger said.

"Yup," the bartender replied. "We've been expanding at a furious rate."

"What's the crowd doing over there?"

"They're playing poker. The game's been going on for eight years now, without a stop. It started as a little domino game but pretty soon it escalated into poker."

The stranger wandered over to the table. There were six men sitting around the table — Black Jack Hanoy, Tiger Cy Gone, Charlie Cong, Big Sam, Little Louse and Kid Kamboadia.

Big Sam had a giant stack of chips in front of him, and he kept giving chips to Tiger Cy Gone after each hand.

Frenchie whispered, "Big Sam says he wants out of the game, but he won't quit until defeat Black Jack just sits there with a poker face and every time his stack gets low the Chinese guy and the fat guy they call 'The Bear' give him more chips to play with."

"What are the guns doing on the table?" the stranger asked.

"Each player says the other guy is cheating. We've had some big shoot-'em-ups around here. I've seen some mean poker games, but this beats all."

"How did it all start?" the stranger asked.

"Wal, way back before anyone can remember, Charlie Cong and Tiger Cy Gone started a penny ante poker game amongst themselves. Pretty soon Tiger Cy Gone, who was one of the worst poker players around, began one winner. Big Sam figured that with all his chips he could bluff and Black Jack Hanoy would have to fold."

"But Black Jack Hanoy was being backed by the Chinese guy and 'The Bear' because they had a grudge against Big Sam."

"So now the stakes are really high, and nobody is going to admit he lost."

"What are Little Louse and Kid Kamboadia doing in the game?" the stranger asked.

"They were just two spectators watching, but Black Jack Hanoy and Big Sam made them sit in. Little and the Kid don't even know how to play poker and they're both broke, but Big Sam says the more players there are in the game, the more chance Tiger Cy Gone will have of winning, and the sooner Big Sam will be able to go home."

As they were talking, Big Sam dealt the cards. "Okay," he said, "this is the big hand."

If You Change Your Mind, Turn UP a Voting Pointer and Turn DOWN Another for the Same Office.

As no votes are registered until the Red Handle is moved to open the curtain, you can make as many changes as you desire while the Red Handle is at the right side. The machine is so arranged that you can turn down only the proper number of voting pointers for each office; you cannot spoil your ballot by voting for too many candidates. Each candidate's voting pointer is located just above the name; a voting pointer must be turned down over the name of each candidate for whom you wish to vote. LEAVE VOTING POINTERS DOWN. No one will know how you have voted because the movement of the Red Handle to the left returns the voting pointers to the original position before the curtain begins to open.
